HOUSE LIMITS AID DEBATE TO 3 DAYS

WAR SURE IF AID BILL FALLS--KNOX

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—The Administration's British-aid bill was sent to the House floor today for a momentous debate starting Monday while Secretary Knox testified the Nazis were awaiting "good weather for a long enough time" to invade England.

After a brief hearing, the House rules committee gave the bill a legislative right-of-way under procedure calling for three days of general debate and permitting the unlimited offering of amendments.

Committee members said the action was by voice vote. Chairman Bloom (D.), New York, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, was asked by Rep. Cox (D.) of Georgia, as to whether he thought "this country is neutral."

Bloom asserted:

"No, but we are just as neutral as any other nation."

Cox declared:

"The bill is a war measure, not a peace measure."

LINDY TALK 'WILD FANCY'

Knox was at the other end of the Capitol, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations committee. He renewed his forecast of a "very grave crisis" within 60 or 90 days.

Knox made the assertion about

COL. FRANK KNOX

the Nazis awaiting invasion weather in the course of testimony which also included statements that it was "wild fancy" to talk as Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has done, of a negotiated peace in Europe and that Germany and Britain alike were "desperately" seeking a master-of-the skies type of airplane.

COL. CHAS. LINDBERGH

Sen. Nye (R.) of North Dakota asked whether, if the aid provided in the bill were "insufficient," the United States would have to go even further.

SEES FIGHT INEVITABLE

"That's possible," Knox responded. "But we do know this: If we don't do what we propose in this bill we will certainly have to fight some time."

At another point, he interrupted a series of questions by Nye regarding future policy by remarking that this nation would "fight against what the Nazis offer as long as there is a man left alive in America."

Nye asked whether the aid legislation would permit the President to release military equipment, such as the new bombight, to Britain. After Knox said it would, Nye asked whether the bombight had been released and the witness replied negatively.

To further questions, Knox said he would not like to see the Johnson act, forbidding private loans to war debt defaulters, destroyed or circumvented.

"My attitude toward England in her present crisis," Knox continued, "is not due to any silly idea of sentiment. We are helping ourselves—we are gaining time to defend ourselves."

SAFETY IN BIG NAVY

"Once we have a fleet superior to any combination on the high seas then the Western Hemisphere will be safe."

Knox added he believed the

9 BUND LEADERS JAILED

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 31 (A.P.)—William Kunze, national leader of the German American Bund, and eight Bund associates were sentenced today to serve one year to 14 months in State Prison on charges of violating New Jersey's "race hatred" law.

Two of them were also fined $2000 each and the other seven, $1000 each.

The men had been indicted on charges of making or permitting anti-Semitic speeches at the bund's Camp Nordland, in Andover township. They elected to file a demurrer, challenging the constitutionality of the law and denying the seriousness of the charges, instead of standing trial.

Judge John C. Losey of the Sussex County court overruled the demurrer January 7 and imposed the sentences today.

An appeal motion was immediately filed.

Sentenced with Kunze were: August Klapprott, Andover, the Bund's eastern regional leader, whose territory reaches to Florida, one of those fined $2000; Matthias Kohler, Irvington, New Jersey Bund treasurer, also fined $2000; Rev. John C. Fitting, Union City, state Bund secretary; Richard Schiele, Paterson, Camp Nordland trustee; Paul Schaarschmidt, Paterson, also a trustee; Carl Schippkopf, Glen Rock, trustee; George Neuppert, Cliffside Park, trustee, and Leonard D. Clark, New York, writer for a Bund publication.

All but Clark were given prison sentences and $1000 fines on charges of permitting the speeches. Judge Losey released all in $2000 bail each pending an appeal to the State Supreme court.

2 More Ships Sunk, Nazis Say

BERLIN, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—Long-range German warplanes were reported by the Nazi high command today to have sunk the 3677-ton Norwegian merchant ship Austvard 250 miles off Donegal, Ireland, and another smaller vessel near the mouth of the Elbe river on the English east coast.

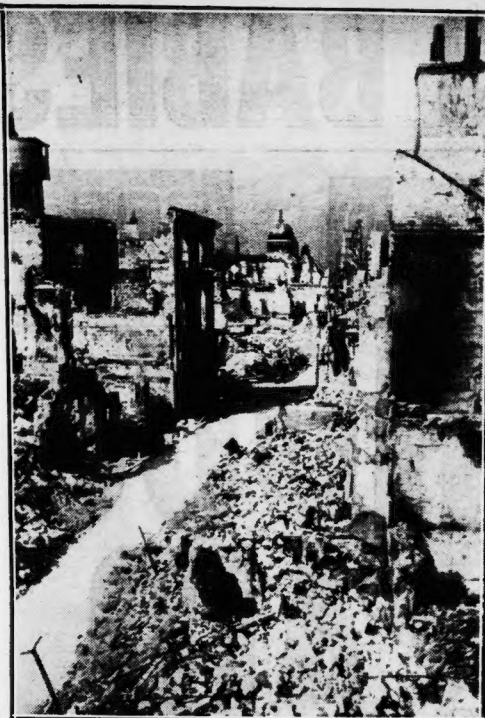

A German submarine also was credited with sinking 20,000 tons of "enemy merchant shipping space."

During daylight raids, on southeast England yesterday, a communique said, individual Nazi planes made "audacious attacks" on "airports, troops camps, anti-aircraft positions, automobile columns, factories and rail lines."

Noted Fleet Street Inn, Bombed, Fired By Rat, to Reopen

LONDON, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—Ye Olde Cheshire Cheese, Fleet street restaurant familiar to many Americans, expects to resume business next week.

It survived a bombing and incendiary raid, but was damaged by fire Jan. 23 when a rat chewed a wire and caused a short circuit.

Britain Has Heaviest Day Raids in Months

LONDON, Jan. 31 (INS)—Sweeping up the Thames in large formations, then deploying to deliver far-flung lone wolf attacks, Nazi bombers today carried out one of the most intensive and widespread daylight air assaults on England in months.

N. Y. Broker Now 'Woman' Volunteer British War Worker

LONDON, Jan. 31 (A.P.)—

Francis Blake, who notices the insignia of the women's volunteer service on his shoulder but it is no joke to Francis Blake, 28-year-old New York stock-broker's son.

When the war started, Blake, cousin by marriage of Lord Templemore and Lord Northfield, was determined to serve Britain. Because he was an alien the Civil Defense, Red Cross and several other civilian units said "no."

The WVS accepted him and each day Blake drives a truck through the countryside carrying anything from handbags to babies.

JURY HOLDS FATE OF NEGRO BUTLER IN ATTACK CASE

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Jan. 31 (AP)—A superior court jury of six men and six women began at 11:12 a. m. today deliberating on the case of Joseph Spell, Negro butler, accused of attacking his socialite employer, Mrs. John K. Strubing, Jr., of Greenwich.

MRS. JOHN K. STRUBING, JR.

C. A. Bingham, Newton, to Wed

Clarence A. Bingham, 51, of Burr rd., Newton Center, nationally-known municipal finance surveyor and consultant, filed marriage intentions today at Newton City Hall with Mrs. Jane E. Fleming, 44, of Washington st., Norwood, a divorcee.

Immediately afterward the couple obtained a waiver of the two-day law from Judge Donald E. Mayberry in Newton court and obtained their marriage license.

Bingham, a widower, is head of the Bingham Survey Associates of Newbury st., Back Bay, and has another office at the State House. He has been city manager in a number of communities, among them Waltham, Norwood, Lima, O.; Watertown, N. Y., and West Palm Beach, Fla.

'I'M GOING TO LOSE 20 POUNDS'

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

After all my crowing, I stepped on the scales at the gymnasium this morning and found I weighed exactly the same as I did on Wednesday, which was 120.

Mrs. Alexander consoled me, however, by assuring me that I couldn't expect to lose a pound every two days, and that it is not at all unusual for people even to go up a pound as their muscles become hardened.

My exercises are still not my idea of fun, but I'm rather proud of how much better I can do them now. My instructress . . . I call her Simone Legree . . . has relentlessly gone up on the counts.

Now she makes me do the windmill 30 times, and the one in which I swing my body around and touch the floor outside each heel 20 times.

I'm still an ungraceful vision as I do that lunge forward (away forward, now!) but I can now bring my chest down to touch the forward knee, keeping the back leg straight. Add that one to your repertoire. I do it 15 times in my lumbering fashion.

The one thing I can't get quite used to is the limelight. Nobody talks to me any more about the war, about Roosevelt or the latest best seller. I'm so weary of answering questions about my weight.

It's also a little disconcerting to have everyone on the staff giving your outlines a critical once-over every time you walk into the city room. But at least they all admit that they

3 Children Perish, Two Escape in Fire

Their screams piercing the air above the crackle of flames, three small children perished today in a fire which wiped out their home in North Weymouth and damaged a second house.

GORDON ROBERTS, 12 AND SISTER, EVELYN, 10
Saved by Heroic Parents in No. Weymouth Fire

ATTACKER FAINTS AT 3-YEAR TERM

Frank Rocco, 33, of Somerville, collapsed and his mother, Mrs. Carmela Rocco of Revere, became hysterical today in superior court when he was sentenced to three to five years in State Prison for attacking Mrs. Mary Joyce Cragg of Somerville.

A sealed verdict of guilty had been turned in by the jury and Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau had not yet completed the words of the sentence when Rocco, without a sound, toppled over in the dock. Almost immediately his mother, seated behind him in the spectators' section, began to scream in Italian: "Give me my son; give me my son!"

While one detail of court officers rushed over to Mrs. Rocco, three others went to the side of the prisoner, who had apparently struck his head on a chair in the dock as he fell.

CARRIED FROM COURTROOM

Rocco was carried out to an ante room and a doctor sent for, while his mother was carried to the attorney's room on the eighth floor.

The jury had been given the attack case half an hour after noon yesterday and did not reach the verdict until after court had closed for the day.

When the verdict was announced today, Rocco stood without expression and he listened intently while his counsel, William Bagley, vainly attempted to secure a stay of sentence until he could prepare a plea. Judge Beaudreau said the case should be finished up today, and he saw no reason why anything the attorney might have in mind might not be said immediately.

TOPPLES OVER

The counsel then made a plea for leniency, declared that this was not an aggravated case of attack and that Rocco had no previous record of felony.

Judge Beaudreau agreed that the defendant's record was not bad but said it was not a probation case and he must follow the statute.

He then began to pronounce sentence, and had just designated three to five years when Rocco toppled. Despite the excitement, the judge continued with the specification that the first day be served in solitary confinement and the rest at hard labor.

As Rocco was being carried from the courtroom, his sister, who had been seated beside the mother, rushed over and kissed her unconscious.

Dead were Richard Gould, 6; Janet, 5, and James, 3.

Seriously burned was the mother, Mrs. Hilda Gould, 29, on the danger list at Weymouth Hospital, while James Gould, 31, the father, was under treatment for shock and smoke inhalation.

Gordon Roberts, 12, half-brother of the tiny victims, and his sister, Evelyn, 10, saved for their lives and escaped uninjured.

RISK LIVES

Heroic efforts of neighbors, who saved Mrs. Gould, were useless as far as the doomed trio of children were concerned, as a wall of flame blocked the windows leading to their second-story bedroom.

The father, several firemen and Patrolman William Riley of the Weymouth police risked their lives in attempts to reach the screaming brothers and sister, but the flames drove all rescuers back.

Within a few seconds, the cries suddenly stopped. Only the roar of the fire and shouts of excited spectators continued as the flames quickly swept up and through the roof of the two-story house, in Wituamnet rd., Wessagusset section of North Weymouth.

So intense was the heat that the neighboring home of Mr. and Mrs. James Boudreau was ignited, forcing the family of seven to flee. Nearby fences, trees, even the ice-coated grass were ablaze when firemen arrived.

BLAST IN KITCHEN

An explosion, apparently in the kitchen, awakened the father, but by the time he had reached the top of the stairs leading to the first floor a billow of flame and smoke

4TH DRAFT TO TAKE 494 IN HUB

Boston will contribute 494 of the 2687 trainees to be inducted beginning Feb. 18 in the fourth statewide call by selective service draft officials.

This was disclosed today in release of quotas to local draft boards, calling for those selected for a year's military training to report at Boston, Worcester and Springfield immediately after the state's third draft of 3194 men is completed.

With completion of this fourth call, the state will have about 46 per cent of its first year's quota of 29,556 men in camps. The remains to be ready by June 30.

Springfield will contribute 106 trainees, Worcester 87, Cambridge
66, Somerville 65, Lynn 63 and Fall River 76.

Housing Seizure Protested Here

Protests over seizure by the government of the Old Colony housing project in South Boston centered today in mounting criticism of Quincy for failure to provide housing for Fore River shipyard employees.

South Boston civic leaders led the fight for the disappointed applicants seeking homes in the $3,000-900 low rent housing project adjacent to the present Old Harbor Village. Plight of those disposessed when the site was taken over was also voiced.

Rep. John E. Flaherty declared
South Boston had been discriminated against in favor of Quincy, where there have been no arrangements made to house defense workers although the Fore River shipyards are in that city.

Before leaving for Washington to complete details of the transfer of the project to the Federal Works Agency, Chairman John A. Breen of the Boston Housing Authority estimated the city will receive four times as much in fees with the apartments rented at higher figures to the defense workers.

Frankfurter Halts Doom of 2

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 31 (AP)—Eleventh-hour action by Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter in Washington and an executive reprieve saved two Birmingham Negroes from electrocution at Kilby Prison early today.

Joe Vernon and L. C. Bell, convicted of the robbery-slaying of attendant, had been prepared for execution when Warden Earl Wilson received word shortly before midnight a stay of execution had been granted for Vernon.

Negro and white chaplains, a Catholic priest and a Salvation Army major were conducting "last" services for the Negroes as the warden entered the Death Row at 11:35
p. m.—five minutes before the electric current was due to be applied—and told the Negroes of their new lease on life.

Leaping into the air and shouting, Bell told Warden Wilson:
"I'm the gladdest Negro in Kilby tonight! Some may be going free tomorrow, but I'm happier than any."

Eight or ten other men in Death
Row cheered.
Justice Frankfurter granted Vernon a stay in order to allow counsel time to file a writ of certiorari, seeking a review of the State Supreme Court's action denying a writ of habeas corpus.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR E. HAID
Reconciliation Ends . . . Divorce Suit on Again
Boston Evening American Photo

Brookline Wife Sues Merchant as Playboy

It took her husband only two weeks after their reconciliation to forget all his promises and start running around with "the other woman," Mrs. Helen G. Haid of Beacon st., Brookline, testified in Dedham probate court today.

"He began staying out until early mornings," the attractive 30-year-old brunette told Judge George E. Poland. "I asked him
why and he said:

"I am interested in someone else. I don't care for you any more."

Then, said Mrs. Haid, she left for good.
The husband, Arthur E. Haid, Brookline merchant and yachtsman, did not contest the action this time, although he filed a cross-action when Mrs. Haid sought a divorce in 1939.

The Haid's were married in Hull, Oct. 3, 1934, and were happy until the week-end of July 4, 1936, when her husband began the acts of cruelty on which the divorce petition was based, Mrs. Haid testified.
He didn't come home, she said.

and when she asked where he was,
he wouldn't answer.

"I worried about it so that I became ill in bed," she went on,
"and he kicked me out on the floor. My body and arms were bruised."

By 1939, Haid wasn't providing for her and was spending all his money on "the other woman," said the petitioner. She left him and sought a divorce action—the one
Haid moved to contest.

The reconciliation came in May,
1939.

In her previous suit, Mrs. Haid had named a Newton woman, but this time she did not refer to anyone by name.

The petitioner's brother, Richard Gately, came from Camp Edwards today to corroborate Mrs. Haid's statements about bruises allegedly inflicted by the husband.

She is a former member of the faculty of Miss Chapin's school, an exclusive New York academy for girls.

The suit was taken under advisement.

Wife, 77, Wed 53 Years, Sues Man 80 For Separation

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)— Mrs. Lena Feltman finally gave up trying to make a go of married life—after 53 years and 353 days.

Mrs. Feltman, 77, has filed suit for separation from 80-year-old William, charging him with cruelty and failure to support.

Among other things, she alleges, he was "too thrifty." They lived virtually next door to the World's Fair, but he never would take her there. He wouldn't permit her to buy a vacuum cleaner, arguing that rugs swept by hand would last longer. Feltman denies the charges.

2 Women Sentenced In Theft From Man

Two women were found guilty in municipal court today of stealing $135 from Robert Gonsalves of West Springfield st., South End, while he was out celebrating, after winning some money in a lawsuit.

The defendants, Mrs. Marion P.
Laird, 40, of Hotel Gresham, and Mrs. Inez St. Clair, 30, of Malden, were each sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.
They appealed and were held in $300.

Chain Gang Fugitive Escapes Extradition

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 31 (AP)—
Gov. Charles Edison refused today to grant the extradition to Georgia of Robert Elliott Burns, who twice escaped from a chain gang.

Edison wrote to Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia that he believed former Gov. A. Harry Moore's refusal, after a public hearing, to grant the extradition was a "finality."

"This puts a period on the Burns case," Edison commented as he announced his decision.

Cheng, McCue Denied Stays

Stays of sentence were denied today in Middlesex Superior Court to Dr. Ensing W. Cheng, 59, Chinese physician of Reading, and Henry J. McCue, 34, Woburn florist, convicted of conspiring to perform illegal surgery on 16-year-old Catharine Dulong of Woburn.

The girl has been missing for more than 16 months, according to her mother's testimony. She was last seen at the home of Dr. Cheng on the night of Sept. 19, 1939.

Dr. Cheng and McCue were sentenced last Wednesday to two years each in East Cambridge jail, but Judge Harold P. Williams revoked the sentences in order to consider motions for stays, pending appeals to the Supreme Court. He imposed the sentences again today.

amentary betting law in the State

The petition seeking a referendum on the ballot was filed by John F. Feeney of Cambridge, outspoken foe of racing, and by several clergymen and prominent citizens. It is opposed by a counter-petition filed by Robert J. Bottom-

BASEMENT STUDIO-ANNEX

More than 25,000 persons, the greatest number to ever attend the affair here and probably the biggest throng ever to jam their way into Boston Garden, did their part.

SIGH IN RELIEF

Fully 5000 more who purchased tickets did not attend and members of the committee sighed in relief. There would have been no place to put them.

Every seat in the Garden was filled and thousands more jammed the floor in general dancing, which followed various military drills, band concerts and the grand march.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall and his wife led the grand march which opened the program of dancing and followed drills by three military bands and the entertainment.

LINE OF MARCH

John Roosevelt, youngest son of President Roosevelt, conveyed a message from his father, with whom he had talked by telephone, thanking everyone present and expressing the wish that it had been possible for him to be there.

In the line of march behind Gov. Saltonstall were Adj.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson and Emily Saltonstall, daughter of the governor; Commissioner of Corrections and Mrs. Arthur Lyman, Mayor and Mrs. Maurice Tobin, Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt, Dr. and Mrs. Martin H. Spellman, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McKinney, Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty and Mrs. John A. Donoghue and Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Gallagher, Jr.

A huge birthday cake was presented to John Roosevelt as proxy for his distinguished father. It represented the work of Statler Hotel chefs and was a work of art a replica in frosting of the Paul Revere house, intimately associated with the early history of Boston.

Young Roosevelt accepted the cake on behalf of the President and after it had been sufficiently admired it was whisked off to Boston Airport and placed aboard the 10 p. m. American Airlines plane for Washington, where it was due to arrive about midnight.

ALL RISE AND SING

A striking tableau brought to a close a military pageant in which 1000 members of the Spanish War Veterans, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled Veterans took part. At the climax powerful lights were thrown on a platform in the center of the Garden, decked with 50 American flags, and the entire audience rose and sang the national anthem.

Winners of the various prizes were announced as follows: Chevrolet sedan, Michael Saville, Common st.; Quincy; red fox fur coat, Park Clothing Co., River st., Hyde Park; $100 Waltham watch, David McGrath, Brookford st., Dorchester; suit of clothes, Louis D. Buchanan, Salem st.; Boston; table radio set, Julius Bernbaum, Riverway, Boston; man's traveling bag, Fred Harnden, Dudley st., Roxbury; electric toaster, M. D. Circo, Pleasant st., Malden.

Experts Explain Traffic Artery

Flanked by traffic experts Mayor Tobin lunched with members of the Boston City Council today at the Parker House to discuss the $19,000,000 central artery traffic legislation now pending at the State House.

The measure, introduced by Sen. Arthur Hollis, of Newton, cannot be acted upon by the legislature unless approved by the City Council. Describing the plan as a matter of vital importance Mayor Tobin said it was his intention to acquaint the Council with complete details of the bill.

Assisting the Mayor were Frank Malley, secretary of the City Planning Board, and Philip Desmond, chief engineer for the Boston Traffic Commission.

Gold, Bases Urged As Price for Aid

Gold and bases in both oceans for Pacific shipping were the demands today by Ralph E. Flanders, president of the New England Council, in return for our assistance to Great Britain in her war. Flanders, in addressing the New England Wholesale Lumber Ass'n. at the University Club, said we must drive a hard bargain for any assistance we sent across the sea.

Quick-Witted Cop Nabs Car Theft Suspect

As the result of some fast thinking on the part of Patrolman John J. (Tiger) Young of Station 9, former B. C. football star, John Q. Babcock, 22, of Herman st., Roxbury, was arraigned on seven automobile charges today in Roxbury Court and held in $3000 for a hearing Feb. 5.

Wednesday night Young saw a man running toward him as he stood in a doorway on Thorndike st. He stopped the runner, who was bleeding from a cut over one eye, and asked him where he came from. The man said he had "run all the way from Dover st."

That two-mile jaunt raised a doubt in Young's mind. He had hardly arrived at the station with his runner when a taxi driver came in to report a hit and run case and identified Babcock.

Investigation, according to the police, revealed that the car Babcock is alleged to have been operating was stolen. It is owned by Miss Mary Murphy of Hienford st., Brighton, and had been parked near the Club Mayfair, by Miss Murphy's sister, Ann, "hat-check girl at the night club."

In the car, the police said, were a set of plates taken from a car reported stolen several days ago. Babcock was arraigned on charges of larceny of a motor vehicle and larceny of plates, driving under the influence, driving so as to endanger, leaving the scene of an accident after causing property damage, driving without authority and driving without a license.

Young testified Babcock's "two miles" was two blocks.

No Contests in Paid Posts in Methuen Poll

METHUEN, Jan. 31 (AP)—For the first time in this town's 215 years of existence, there will be no contest in the March election for paid government positions, Selectman Arthur Nicholson announced today. There will, however, be contests for unpaid jobs.

CURLEY SUIT WRIT CALLS FOR $71,261

Writs of execution were issued today, ordering former Gov. James M. Curley and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso to pay the City of Boston a total of $71,261.30, plus interest at 6 per cent since Dec. 4.

The writs were signed by Asst. Clerk Charles J. Hart of Suffolk superior civil court on demand of Asst. Corp. Counsel Robert H. Hopkins representing the city.

Curley is ordered to pay $42,629.58 plus court costs of $106 and interest, and Santosuosso $28,419.72 plus costs and interest.

The sums represent moneys found by the Supreme court to have been fraudulently withheld from the city in a settlement of the General Equipment Corp. lawsuit in 1933.

A petition for a writ of review of the cases in on file in superior court and is returnable Feb. 6, but this does not halt executions.

Hopkins was expected to hand over the writs to Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan for service on the former Governor and on Santosuosso. The sheriff's job is collecting the cash.

Drug Slayer Awaits Trial

Mrs. Ruth Steadman, 27, blonde young mother, today awaited trial in Charles st. jail while Suffolk County authorities hurried for presentation before the grand jury their accusation that she murdered Robert G. Emery, Natick realtor.

Hardly had the former Needham High School beauty pleaded not guilty in Municipal Court when Dist. Atty. William J. Foley declared he would present evidence in her case to the grand jury next week.

According to the medical examiner's finding, the death of Emery was caused by the injection of poison.

In her cell at Charles st. jail following an active day, Mrs. Steadman maintained the poise and serenity which had characterized her during earlier hours.

She was placed in a cell directly opposite the desk of Matron Mary Ahern, at an angle where she will be within sight of the matron day and night.

New State Wage Board Urged

Creation of a special wage and hour board to handle the problems of maximum hours and minimum wages for intra-state labor was recommended today by a special Massachusetts commission as it rejected suggestions for enactment of a state counterpart of the Federal Wage and Hour Act.

The commission declared in a report submitted to the Legislature that "the employe and the employer in the Commonwealth can best be served by allowing labor and industry to settle the problem of what wages and hours shall apply in a particular industry by conference and discussion, among those engaged in a particular industry, rather than by arbitrarily settling wages and hours by legislation which might not be applicable to a specific industry."

$3,867,336 Total Hit in Fund Drive

The Greater Boston Community Fund Campaign stands at an official total of $3,867,336, it was announced at the sixth "Dutch Treat" report luncheon this noon in the Chamber of Commerce.

Governor Saltonstall, a former general chairman of the Community Fund, was the main speaker.

Stories of young people and old helping to put the Community Fund across continued to come into campaign headquarters today.

NEW RECORD

A new record for active and effective solicitation has been set by a 74-year-old volunteer in the Boston districts division, it was announced today by John J. Walsh, chairman.

The solicitor, James R. Holmes of 19 Myrtle st., Boston, defied the cold blasts yesterday and enrolled a total of 45 subscribers before he called a halt for the night.

"I challenge anybody in the campaign to show more fight and skill than Mr. Holmes has done in his soliciting," Walsh declared.

"If we had more workers with his spirit and will to win, we'd be over the top already." Knowing that every gift helps, seven-year-old Ralph Richwagen appeared in Needham headquarters of the Community Fund and marched up to the reception table. Planking one dime on the line with a confident smack, Master Richwagen stared expectantly over the table-edge.

GETS FEATHER

He received a receipt for his gift and was presented with a Red Feather, plus the extra service of having it put in his hat.

The only trouble was that Master Richwagen could not see the Red Feather when his hat was on. So he walked out of headquarters bareheaded, holding his hat stiffly in front of him, eyes glued on the bright Community Fund symbol.

FORD JOB WAR AIDE'S HEADACHE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson testified today that the War Department was considering inclusion in all Army contracts of a provision requiring compliance with all labor laws, but was not ready to recommend "coercive" legislation to curb labor disputes on defense projects.

He made the statement to the House military committee during questioning as to why the Ford Motor Co. was refused a contract for Army trucks to cost about $10,000,000.

"That's one of my particular headaches," Patterson said when Rep. Thomas (R.) of New Jersey asked him about the Ford matter.

After repeated questions, Patterson testified that the labor provision to which Ford objected had been included in the contract prospectus at the request of Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the office for production management.

"Why was it included in that contract and not in the others awarded to the Ford company?" Thomas asked.

"The others were negotiated contracts," Patterson replied.

He referred to a $120,000,000 contract for airplane engines and a smaller award for midjet scout cars for the army.

"The matter is still in the making," Patterson continued, "as to whether those provisions should be put uniformly in all contracts."

"But in this particular contract, it was included because Sidney Hillman wanted it, wasn't it?" Thomas asked.

"Yes, he wanted it," Patterson replied.

Accidents Killed 96,500 In 1940

CHICAGO, Jan. 31 (AP)—The National Safety Council reported today that 96,500 persons were killed in accidents in the United States last year.

Another 9,100,000 were injured. It estimated the economic loss, including medical expense, property damage, lost wages and the overhead cost of insurance, at $3,500,000,000.

The council said that the 1940 death toll was 4 per cent—or almost 4000 lives—greater than it was in 1939.

This was the first increase over a preceding year since 1936, but the council said it was far from the highest on record. In 1936 there were 119,952 deaths.

Rescuers Rush Fisher Here

Frank M. Kinnickie, 37-year-old Canadian fisherman who had been adrift eight days in an open dory from which his companion had been lost on the wintry north Atlantic, was on his way to Boston today in the care of the United States Coast Guard.

The cutter Chelam removed the frost-bitten fisherman today from the Boston trawler Breakers which had rescued him, and proceeded for a rendezvous with the smaller cutter Argo, dispatched to bring him into port.

'INVASION TOUGH JOB' ---WILLKIE

DOVER, England, Jan. 31 (AP)—Mud-splashed and weary after a day in Britain's front line on the channel, Wendell L. Willkie declared late today that British defenses against invasion appeared "very impressive and I wouldn't like to be the German attacking them."

He remarked that he had seen "some slight shelling" across the channel but that "it didn't amount to anything."

"The defenses exceeded my expectations in many ways," he said. "I think the Germans have a tough job on their hands."

Twice during an inspection of "Hell's Corner"—the Dover defenses—Willkie saw anti-aircraft guns in action against a Dornier "flying pencil."

Anti-invasion guns mounted at the extreme end of the harbor fired several rounds for him to see.

After inspecting a giant gun named "Winnie," for Winston Churchill, Willkie drove back to London.

Willkie came to Dover unaccompanied by newspapermen, but press representatives attended his doings here. At London the ministry of information said that because of the nature of what he was to be shown "we must exclude the press."

It was announced that Willkie would visit Coventry and Birmingham, two of the most heavily bombed cities, on a Sunday trip into the Midlands.

Harry L. Hopkins, President Roosevelt's personal representative, went to Southampton today. U. S. Prime Minister Churchill and Mrs. Churchill, inspecting damaged docks, buildings and homes.

scious brother, who revived a short time later under the doctor's ministring.

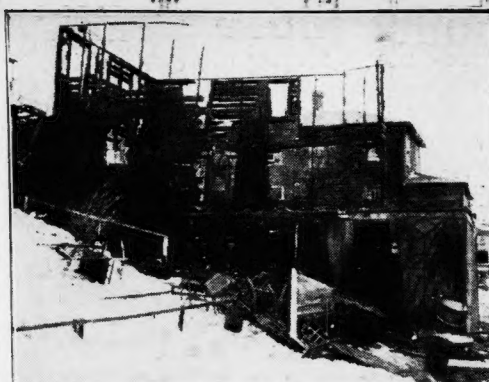

While Rocco's relatives attended the excitement session, Mrs. Cragg was not observed in the courtroom or the courthouse.

Neither was Miss Catherine E. Falvey, state representative, nor her brother Richard, present.

It was testified during the trial by Mrs. Cragg that the Falveys were instrumental in having her sign a statement absolving Rocco of blame in the attack—for which statement Mrs. Cragg said she was paid $100.

Before today's verdict and sentencing, both Mrs. Cragg and her estranged husband, Frank Cragg of Russell rd., Somerville, denied a report that they had become reconciled.

Cragg declared that through his counsel, Atty. James Gaffney of Tremont st., he filed suit for divorce three months ago and expects the case to come up in March. He is a mechanic for a Boston milk concern.

CHARRED REMAINS OF GOULD HOME IN NO. WEYMOUTH Where Fire Snuffed Out Lives of Three Children had swept through, cutting off all means of escape.

Gould shouted to arouse his wife and children as he ran to the roof of the front porch in an effort to escape.

"The smoke was blinding and I just managed to fight my way back to the rear of the house, to the roof of a small back porch," he said. "I jumped into the snow-bank and ran to get Boudreau's ladder."

"All the time I could hear my wife and children screaming. Oh! What a sound! I'll never be able to forget it!"

At that moment, James Gould, the neighbor, and his 17-year-old son, James Jr., arrived in their car from a trip to Boston. The Boudreaux rushed to the front of the house with their ladder and rescued Mrs. Gould, unconscious from the flaming roof of the porch.

KRACH ROOF

The elder two children, meanwhile, had reached the small back porch roof and the girl, Evelyn Roberts, daughter of Mrs. Gould and a former husband, leaped into Gould's arms. Gordon Roberts, a youngster of 12, jumped into the snow and saved himself.

By this time, the entire house was a mass of flames and although heroic attempts were made to reach the three small Gould children, they were beyond help.

In addition to Patrolman Riley and the firemen, another neighbor, Walter Blake, tried to reach the trapped little ones.

Deep snow and the location of the Gould house, built against a steep banking at the end of Wituwaumet rd., hampered the firemen. One of the houses extended more than a quarter of a mile from Sea st.

Not until the flames were nearly extinguished could firemen start their search for the three tiny bodies. All were discovered huddled together in a mass of smoking ruins on the first floor.

South Shore Trains Tangled by Wreck

Commuters on the Plymouth line and the Hingham branch of the Old Colony division of the New Haven railroad bore the brunt today of the eight-car derailment at South Braintree of the Boston to Plymouth 5:13 train last night, in jammed coaches, tedious bus transfers and a 36-minute delay this morning because of a mail transfer at Braintree.

Within 15 hours, on the second tieup, the road had its hands full directing patrons and explaining the reason for delay of the train scheduled to leave Hingham at 8:13, but pulling into that station 36 minutes behind schedule.

Buses and gasoline coaches were pressed into service for Plymouth commuters, with a detour around the ripped-up section of the track.

It was not until noon that normal service had been restored on both lines and commuters were assured they would not have to put up with the inconveniences and delays of the forenoon in returning to their homes.

BROKEN RAIL BLAMED

Work was speeded up at the scene of the South Braintree derailment and at 10:20 a. m. workmen had the last of the coaches back on the rails.

The railroad announced officially that the cause of the derailment was "apparently a broken rail."

On the Hingham delay it was explained that the second tieup was due to the 5:57 a. m. out of Boston for Greenbush carrying a heavy assignment of mail having to make the transfer of that mail at Braintree.

This delay stretched to 45 minutes by the time the train reached Greenbush and resulted in the Boston run being 36 minutes behind schedule. Trains thereafter, officials said, resumed normal schedules.

Not one of 200 passengers reported injuries after all eight cars of the 5:13 p. m. Boston to Plymouth train left the rails at South Braintree, ripping up more than 200 yards of track.

By daybreak workmen had repaired the five head cars—the baggage-mail car and four coaches—while the other coaches still rested on the ties.

Service set up today was as follows: Train service was in operation between Plymouth and South Weymouth. Gas cars were used from West Hanover, Rockland and North Abington to South Weymouth. There, passengers transferred to buses and went over the highway to Braintree. At Braintree they again transferred to trains and thence to Boston.

Blizzard Balked Lloyd George

LONDON, Jan. 31 (AP)—It can be reported now that the worst snowstorm of years for Wales was responsible last week for the failure of David Lloyd George to reach the bedside of his wife at Criccieth until the day after she died.

(There are wartime restrictions on reporting the weather of the British Isles.)

The World War prime minister started down Churt as soon as he heard Dame Lloyd George's illness was serious, but his car was blocked by drifted snow at several places along the 200-mile route.

In one village, policemen and collectors cut a pathway for five miles. Dame Lloyd George died Jan. 26.

Tobruk Siege Seen by Donovan

ISTANBUL, Jan. 31 (AP)—Col. William J. Donovan, unofficial United States observer making a tour of the Near East, arrived at Istanbul airport today after a flight from Athens. He will consult Turkish leaders at Ankara.

His plane was piloted by Lord Fairfax, assistant British air attaché at Athens. This was taken as emphasizing British interest in Donovan's Balkan tour.

Further indicative of the British interest in Donovan's mission, was the tour of the Libyan battle front they arranged for him while he was in Africa. He witnessed part of the successful siege of Tobruk.

The American planned to leave by train tonight for Ankara, where he said he would remain two or three days. He expected to interview President Ismet Inonu, Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu and Premier Refik Saydam.

Loss of Trade Peril To Japs' New Order

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—The dual strain of war and dislocated trade, diplomatic sources said today, may become so intense on Japan's economic structure that realization of Tokyo's dreams of "a new order" in the Far East must be indefinitely postponed.

Because of the increasingly critical state of affairs, it was said Japan may feel compelled to take "drastic steps" in an effort to remedy the country's economic position. The diplomatic sources based their opinion on recent authoritative information.

As examples of what to expect in sort of a "drastic step" decision, these sources cited Japan's aimed intervention in French Indo-China, the strong pressure on the Netherlands East Indies for extensive economic concessions and a diplomatic push to establish a Japanese-dominated "East Asian economic sphere."

American officials are interested in the effect decreasing trade is increasing economic stress, and have on Japan's policies in view of possible repercussions on American Japanese relations.

Foreign trade statistics reveal officials here reported that, despite frantic efforts to turn the Japanese exports to gold-paying countries have been steadily increasing to an extent that greatly diminishes Japan's ability to purchase essential raw materials in many countries.

Japan's serious need of oil, cotton and other commodities for industrial and wartime production in the face of its drastically reduced purchasing power, it was noted, may become the paramount consideration in her future policy.

Lace Replaces Gold Braid on Cuffs Of Canadian Officers

OTTAWA, Jan. 31 (AP)—Yellow silk lace produced in Canadian factories will replace gold braid on the cuffs of officers in the Royal Canadian Army.

"It may not be so fancy," a navy spokesman said, "but will be as effective and it may be a worthwhile economy."

Canada formerly imported the greater part of her gold braid from France, but that source vanished with France's capitulation last June.

JOE-THE-BARBER'S WALTZ MELODY OF 40 YEARS AGO TO GET RADIO TEST

The song writers dream with sometimes only the almightiest hopes reality will strengthen their cloud castles, but when a father and son pitch into the fight, dreams can come true.

Joseph La Barbera is 73 years old now and still cutting hair in Union City, N. J. He is the father of Vincent La Barbera of Bloomsburg, a Boston telegrapher, and he is also the author of "My Sweet Dream."

"My Sweet Dream" is a waltz—a waltz of the days of dreamy music 40 years ago—the days before the jazz and the swing

Joseph-the-barber wrote it. He tried to have it played. It's published. He took it from house to house, but could not sell it. Finally, he loaded all his copies into a wagon and gave them to the Salvation Army.

This winter his son, Vincent, brought out his date waltz. He sent it to Hasty Saltier for the radio "Song of Your Life" program. It is to be broadcast tomorrow at 9 P. M. over a network, the New England outlets being WBZ, Boston, and WBZA, Springfield.

Knox Sees War if Aid Fails

European war would be over before the United States could have an "adequate" defense. He said this country should help Britain as long as the war lasted, and said the cost of such aid "will be infinitely less than the cost involved if the Nazis win."

In the questioning of Knox, Nye asked whether the witness agreed that an American move to convoy supplies to Britain would not be an act of war and Knox nodded assent.

"Would you change your mind if the President ordered convoys?" the North Dakota Senator asked.

"Certainly," Knox replied firmly.

"Would you change your mind about its being an act of war?" Nye insisted.

"I'm the Secretary of the Navy," the witness replied. "The President is my commander-in-chief. I do what he tells me."

DANGER KNOX SEES

Nye and Knox fell into a discussion of Woodrow Wilson's policies prior to the World War and those of the present administration. At one point Nye stated:

"It still is not clear to me..."

Sen. Connally (D.) of Texas, interrupted:

"Mr. Chairman, the witness has answered the question. Everybody here knows that the senator from North Dakota is a Wilson hater, a Wilson vilifier and a Wilson calumniator."

"I deny each and every one of those assertions," Nye responded. In regard to the crisis within 60 to 90 days, Knox said the developments centered around these two things:

That the German air force had changed its tactics from indiscriminate bombing of London in a fruitless effort to break the British people's morale to the "far more effective" bombing of industrial centers.

That the British yet have been unable to find any successful convoy method of combatting increased German submarine activity.

"Right now," Knox told the committee, "they are watching the long-range weather forecasts for a period when they will have good weather for a long enough time."

DOUBTS LINDY'S WISDOM

Knox said it was "wild fancy" to believe that a negotiated peace now could bring stability to Europe.

Knox also declared that there had been a "lull" in German airplane production in the last month or two, during which, he said, American and British plants had produced more planes than the German plants.

This was due, he declared, to a "desperate" German search for a "new type of ship that will make all of the airplanes in the air now obsolete."

The British, too, he described as "desperately seeking" such a new design, adding that this was one reason why American plant production capacity should be increased rapidly.

WHAT HELPS ENGLAND

"Then," he said, "if we find some design that will make every other plane in the world obsolete, we can turn them out by the hundreds."

Sen. Gillette asked Knox if it weren't true that even a strong navy would have difficulty in overcoming shore batteries.

"That's what makes the attempted invasion of England so dubious," Knox replied.

Gillette asked about a speech in which Grand Admiral Raeder of the German Navy recently said that Germany planned to become a world navy power. When Gillette referred to the speech as "bombastic," Knox said:

"All through this war, we have heard things come out of Germany and we have said they couldn't be done in 30 or 90 days they are done."

He cited the invasion of Norway and the destruction of the French army as two examples of this.

"When they talk blusteringly and boastfully," he said, "I don't believe them, but I get my armor ready."

QUOTES CABINET MAN

Senator Gillette remarked to Knox that a cabinet member had informed the committee that Britain, due to developments in the Mediterranean and Africa, was in much better position to resist an invasion than it had been four or five months ago. Both Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of War Stimson have testified in closed committee sessions, but Gillette did not say whom he quoted.

The Iowa Senator said the cabinet member revealed there had been an abortive attempt to infiltrate German troops into Bulgaria, Russia, he said it was disclosed, had lent its influence to maintain Bulgaria's independent status. German attempts to gain use of the French fleet and French naval bases also had been unsuccessful, Gillette said the testimony indicated. In addition, he said the committee was informed a Nazi plan to attack Gibraltar through Spain was abandoned because of opposition by the Spanish government and lack of food supplies.

This whole situation, Gillette continued, had worked to the disadvantage of Hitler and had made Great Britain's position better. Why then, Gillette asked, was the Administration passing the passage of the pending bill should be a matter of hours."

SAYS NAZI ARMY READY

Knox said he was "not at all sure" that Germany did not have the military power to "correct" the Mediterranean situation, from a Nazi standpoint. Despite all of this, he said, the German invasion army on the French coast had been maintained without reduction, invasion bombardments had been practiced and plans seem to be going ahead for the attempt.

"There is everything to indicate," Knox declared, "that Mr. Hitler has not let his gaze be diverted in any way from the one objective of invading England."

The Navy Department head recalled Lindbergh's assertion that the United States was not vulnerable to attack.

"I have the greatest respect for Col. Lindbergh," Knox declared. "He has great knowledge of commercial aviation, but his knowledge of military aviation has been slight."

"The conclusions he has drawn indicate that lack of knowledge."

"A negotiated peace can bring stability only when a military stalemate has existed for a long time and the participants have reasonable confidence the terms of the peace will be faithfully executed," he declared.

"I doubt that the British people would accept any German assurances at their face value."

Asserting that the Western Hemisphere would be "in grave danger" of invasion if the Nazis were victorious over Britain, Knox made the point often stated by other administration witnesses, that the United States needed time

Watch Family Now While Epidemic Colds Are Spreading

At a treacherous time like this, with an epidemic of contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SHUFFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION... put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub up each nostril. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of VapoRub helps clear the clogging sinus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) use Vicks VapoRub to relieve misery. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warm cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember! If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

KNOX HITS LINDY'S PEACE IDEA

to build ships, train crews, develop bases and enlarge its army.

IF BRITAIN FALLS

"Only Great Britain and its fleet can give us that time and they need our help to survive," he said. "If Great Britain is defeated, we must be fully prepared to repel attempts by Germany to seize bases on this side of the Atlantic."

"I believe a victorious Germany would move over to this hemisphere just as soon as she could gain the strength to do so."

Knox said he was convinced that defeat of Britain would "definitely carry with it the destruction of the British fleet or its transfer to Germany to be used against us as soon as Germany trained the men to man it."

The United States might build, he said, a Navy and Army capable of turning back any Nazi threat to this hemisphere, but the cost and the sacrifices would be great.

LATIN-AMERICAN PERIL

Latin-America, he added, offered possibilities of an indirect attack if the Nazis won undisputed control of Europe. This might come, he said, first through economic penetration followed by economic dependency.

The next step, he predicted, would be political integration, the gaining of political control and infiltration into the Latin-American fighting forces.

Concluding a prepared statement, Knox said:

"I believe our people now are determined to put forth their full efforts for saving Britain and thus saving themselves from the burdens of future militarism and war, and from an overturn of American life. I believe they want this bill to pass."

SEES U. S. DANGER

Sen. Pepper (D.) of Florida asked Knox whether it was not true that Congress, in enacting the British aid legislation, would not necessarily be approving all past British policies.

Replying affirmatively, Knox added that as an example he believed "the present sorry state of world affairs had its beginning in 1931, when Britain failed to support us in maintaining the nine-power pact."

This country urged enforcement of the pact, which envisioned maintenance of the status quo in the Far East, when Japan invaded Manchukuo in 1931.

Sen. Gillette asked Knox how soon he thought the Axis powers could attack the United States if they were victorious in Europe, and the witness replied:

"I don't believe they could come here tomorrow, but there is a potential danger. They would have to establish bases in South America first. If the Axis powers controlled the seas, as they would in case of destruction of the British fleet, it wouldn't take very long to establish a South American base."

LETTERS FROM ENGLAND

This is another in a series of letters from Britishers to friends and relatives in Greater Boston.

To: Mr. Morris Toll,
643 Washington St.,
Boston, Mass.

From: Mrs. S. Michaels,
183 Northern Rd.,
Manor Park,
Slough,
Bucks, England.

Dear Morrie:

Just to let you know that we are all O. K. I am sorry I haven't answered your letters, but to tell the truth I couldn't concentrate on writing letters to anyone these past few months.

It has been pretty hard for us but anyway, we are now tucked away in a nice little country place. I am living with Ray, and Phoenix, but he is going away shortly to finish his training. He will soon be a skilled mechanic, then he will be looking after the airplanes to help us towards winning the war. You mentioned in your last letter trying to get out of England to America, but I am telling you now that I wouldn't leave dear old England, as it means a lot to me.

DOING BIT

We are all on the war front doing our bit. Ray works in a factory doing work of National Importance.

I am starting next week as a private secretary also of National Importance. I am real thrilled at the idea, as I haven't worked for nearly seven years, but when it means helping with the war effort, it means a lot to me. I am glad that America is helping us. It will quicken the war.

"Poor old Italy" is having a rough time, what? They will soon be wiped out. Our RAF boys are doing splendid work, so are all the rest.

Ray saw Charlie a couple of weeks ago when she went to London for a couple of days. He is keeping fine, and Annie and kid are also O. K.

CHILDREN WELL

My two children are well. My baby will be two years old in January, and Pamela will be five in March. Time soon flies.

Well, I haven't any more news, so I'll end with love from us all.

Your loving sister,

SYBIL

Trawlers Down Nazi Bomber

LONDON, Jan. 31 (AP)—The British fishing trawlers Charmouth and Rattatay reported shooting down a large German plane which bombed and machine-gunned them today.

The trawlers were taking in their trawls when the bomber circled above them and dropped a stick of high explosive bombs.

When the attacker swooped and machine-gunned the small boats, it was said, the fishermen returned the fire and finally drove the plane away in flames. It was reported to have plunged into the sea some miles away.

TEPELENI REPORTED CAPTURED

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Jan. 31 (AP)—Military circles reported today that Italian troops had withdrawn from Tepeleni on the central Albanian battlefield, a key point in the Greek drive toward Valona.

Greek Troops Find Heaps of Dead Italians

ATHENS, Jan. 31 (AP)—Greek forces, pushing forward in the area north of Klisura, were reported today to have found heaps of Italian dead and many wounded in abandoned Fascist positions.

A Greek spokesman said four Italian counter-attacks had been repulsed with 200 Italian prisoners taken in two days and later reports from the Albanian front said the charges had such disastrous results that Italian commanders had to call off offensive action in order to reorganize their forces.

Some Fascist units were said to have lost as many as half their men.

The Irish government has loaned the Fog Museum of Harvard University priceless objects of art which will be on display at Harvard from Feb. 3 to Feb. 15. The exhibition contains nearly one hundred objects dating back as early as 1500 B. C.

BRITISH DRIVE ON BENGASI

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 31 (AP)—British operations on all African fronts were reported today as general headquarters to be developing "to our advantage."

The British Army of the Nile had turned its back on the eastern Libyan wastelands after driving the Italians from Derna and pressed on westward and southwestward through the fertile upland country with Bengasi as its next objective.

The Royal Air Force announced a heavy bombardment yesterday of the Italian airfield at Bani, on the road from Derna to Bengasi.

The Libyan activities of the RAF were centered on Bani, 50 miles west of Derna, the communication hub. In several attacks, but were observed on hangars and other buildings around the air field.

In air operations against East Africa, the British reported day attacks with heavy explosive and incendiary bombs on Italian army and infantry positions in the Moyale area of the British Kenya colony, a section of borderland held for months by Italian invaders from Ethiopia.

Other forces in use and machine gunned Italian posts and had lines in Moyale, said the command.

Staff resistance concentrated on Derna, which fell yesterday after four days of the fiercest fighting of the north. An air campaign warned the British that the going may prove increasingly hard.

The belief prevalent in military circles here that the Italians, who have been rolled backward across the past 35 days, intend to make a determined stand in an effort to save Bengasi, a city of strategic importance as a road base and the capital of eastern Libya.

London authoritative quarters said today British troops were continuing to advance along the Libyan coast from Derna toward Apollonia, 40 miles to the west. On the Kenya front in East Africa British troops were reported closing in on Moyale, where the Italians were said to be making a stand. Moyale is a Kenya colony frontier post opposite Ethiopia—Editor's note.

Military strategists pointed out that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had been driven from the Italian coast of Bengasi to the east. The objective of a head-on assault along the Gulf of Suez and the probable waste of desert and sea stretching all the way to Tripoli.

But if it is true that the British have a solid front in the east, it is only 500 miles from the S. then understood from which German dive bombers began bombing recently.

U. S. Airmen Guard Britain

'High Sierra' Is Film for Must

By PEGGY DOYLE

For their swan-song to the gangster whose evil doings have been a vicious source of income for the Warners since crime first became rife in the headlines, the brothers give you "High Sierra."

Now showing on the Metropolitan screen, "High Sierra" is the lowdown on the inevitable sudden curtain that descends on a big-time gunman, in this instance, "Mad Dog" Roy Earle, "the last of the Dillinger gang."

There is no less-and-dose guy whose rubbing-out elicits raucous cheers from the audience. The Warners have their loyalties, and in their gangster picture to end a long series of gangster pictures, the doomed criminal appears to be a gently bred fellow, soft spoken, rather appealing with his graying hair and his chivalry toward women and good to folks.

All he wants is enough money to settle down in the country with a decent girl and fight with her like all married folks do, like Mom and Pop did.

His split of the $500,000 holdup job is in the bag and the girl only has to say "yes" But she says "no," and the cops close in on him. Maybe it's because of the little dog, Pard, insisting on going along, and the colored boy, Algren's, he's, these both, before we forget to mention it, being damn good actors. Well, the cops have closed in and the "Mad Dog" himself is tucked precariously in a high mountain crag, barking defiance vocally and via a machine-gun at them.

Because he really means well, and the faithful moll who loved him all the time, is down there with the little dog looking tearfully up at him and praying that a bullet will end it all before they capture him.

The second feature, "Father's Son," is based on the Booth Tarkington story and co-stars John T. Trol and Fieda Inescort.

'Life With Father' Seat Sales Explained

The management of Oscar Serlin Productions, p. producers of the comedy hit, "Life With Father," with Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern, now in its last weeks at the Civic Repertory Theater, finds it necessary to counteract certain impressions abroad id among the theater-going public, e, especially with regard to $1.10 seats.

Seats for "Life With Father" are placed on sale for three weeks in advance each Monday. Customers who order by mail earlier than three weeks ahead are satisfied according to the rule, "First come, first served."

Naturally, if the cheapest seats, the $1.10's, are the first to go. Frequently, by a mid-afternoon of Monday they are entirely sold for the third week ahead, and there are no more to be had till the Monday following.

Customers who come in later, when there are no more seats at that price occasionally jump to the conclusion that this is because the ticket brokers have them. This is not true.

'Honeymoon for Three' Is Tops

By DON WARD

If there's any place where two's company it's in "Honeymoon for Three," a sprightly little comedy with George Brent and Ann Sheridan being romantic at the Paramount and Fenway.

Mr. Brent is a popular author delight of ladies' literary clubs from coast to coast, in this love marriage, which was known in its "legit" days as "Good-bye Again." Miss "Oomph" is his hard-working secretary, and what that girl has to put up with! When their joint literary and lecture junket takes them to Cleveland, who should show up but Osa Massen, who used to know Georgie back on the old college campus.

Osa is impressionable, to put it mildly. She's sure she's the inspiration for George's latest love story. And she's not going to let mousy little husband Charlie Ruggles stand in her way of renewing those dreamy nights of yore.

"Behind the News" also on the twin program, is another of those mythical movies about newspapers, with a diplomantic reporter, a super-glamorous sob sister and front-page crimes.

Fentons Score at RKO Boston

You can climb right on the band wagon with the Fenton brothers at the RKO Boston, where the radio favorites headline the new vaudeville bill. Joe and George are among radio's finest, and you'll go for them in a big way from their opening theme, "Dirtwood," on through the popular "Frenesi" and "Stein Song Fantasy." Joe turns in a clever monologue about escort service, called "Plaza 3-478." It's a smart closing act for a grade A show.

Strictly for laughs, Don Zelaya, one of the most original comics back of the footlights, hauls out his chart and tells you what music does to the anatomy. Don burlesques the classics, but he's a real music-maker.

Dancing honors on the new bill go to Ann Pritchard and Jack Lord, a clever duo who can do things with ballet, tap and rhythm steps. The fans liked Frank Ross and his pretty partner, too. Frank can imitate anybody from Henry Busse and his trumpet to any number of radio stars, without a single instrument except those flexible vocal cords of his. The Cordovas sing in teeter board and barrel stunts.

On the screen are "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" mystery comedy with John Hubbard and Wendy Barrie, and "Along the Rio Grande," which has Tim Holt as star.

ANN PRICHARD and Jack Lord are featured dancers now appearing in the new RKO Boston stage show. Their ballroom numbers and tap routines have given them an international reputation.

'March of Time' At South Station

South Station Theater promises a sensational feature this week in its top screen attraction, the latest March of Time presentation, an escorted film of European cities, Hatter and R.A.F. in Germany.

Spotlighting as it does the arm of the athletes, the film promises to be an exciting and instructive film, one of the best of the series, and one of the most popular and other short subjects to be shown at the theater.

BOSTON GALS had better look out . . . our eligible bachelors are being captured one by one and in many cases by out of town girls . . .

Samuel Vaughan, Jr., Harvard '38 graduate and prominent young railroad executive, has chosen a girl from Lake Forest, Ill., to be his future bride . . . She is Joan Revell whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Revell, Jr., are announcing their engagement . . .

Joan will not be a stranger to Boston society when she comes here as a young matron, for she attended the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., where she was a classmate of several Beantown girls . . . She will also fit right in with our music loving circles for she is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music . . .

Sam is the son of Mr. Samuel Vaughan of Prides Crossing and a brother of Louisa and Ellen Vaughan . . . He prepared for Harvard at Belmont Hill School and belongs to Hasty Pudding-Institute of 1770, Iroquois and the Harvard Club of Boston . . .

ADDED TO THE LIST of February brides is pretty Jean Richmond who will change her name to Mrs. Henry Stone at a fashionable wedding in Milton. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Richmond. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Stone of Beacon st. and Oyster Harbors.

Seen Round and About Town

MR. AND MRS. C. BERTRAM CURRIER dining in a twosome at a table pulled up beside an old fashioned country stove at a rustic downtown restaurant . . . Mrs. Oliver Leland of West Newton keeping a matinee date with several friends from Cohasset—her lovely auburn hair and brown eyes set off by a mustard wool dress with gold accessories, brown hat and furs . . . She and her husband are looking forward to a winter sports vacation in Vermont . . . Mrs. Bartlett Harwood in a striking black dinner gown with panels of crimson down the front, celebrating her birthday at a dinner party in the Balinese Room . . . Singing "Happy Birthday" as she cut the cake were Mr. Harwood, Sabra and Bartlett Harwood, Jr., the young Eliot Codmans and Mrs. Nathaniel Winthrop . . . Mrs. Codman accented her simple black dinner dress with diamonds and pearls and Mrs. Winthrop wore a pastel gown with gardenias . . .

Mrs. William Brown and her daughter, Mrs. Richard Pratt of Cohasset, are joining forces in entertaining their bridge-loving friends at a luncheon Feb. 6 at the Algonquin Club . . . The afternoon will be spent at duplicate . . .

Mrs. E. Parker Philbin is spending a week in New York consulting with her daughter Mary's future bridegroom over plans for the wedding in March . . . He is Watson Bradley Dickerman of Oyster Bay, L. I. . . The ceremony will be at Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel, March 15 with a reception at the Chilton Club .

Bostonians Florida Guests

Life goes merrily on at Palm Beach where the winter colony seems to be larger and gay than ever. The weekly backgammon tournament at the Everglades Club was attended by more than 200, many of whom had come on from small dinner parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan D. Bull and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Howes of Boston were guests at a dinner given before the tournament by Mrs. Zenas Sears of Stockbridge. Other guests were Mrs. A. O. Barker of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Eben Howes Ellison, Mrs. Elden C. DeWitt, Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mrs. Herbert E. Gale, Mrs. Earle Perry Charlton, and many others.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston who have been visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Kennedy in the South are now at the Palm Beach Biltmore for several weeks.

MID-WINTER MEETING

Mrs. Nehemiah H. Whilman, president of the Beth Israel Hospital Women's Auxiliary, will preside at the mid-winter meeting to be held Monday, Feb. 3, at Temple Israel. There will be a bouillon hour and cake sale at 1 o'clock, after which the program will include a play and musical selections. Miss Jessie Goldsmith will be hostess for the afternoon.

Society Notes

Mrs. James McManus of West Roxbury announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Agnes McManus, to John E. Collier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Collier of Roxbury. Miss McManus is active in alumnae affairs of Emmanuel College, Boston.

The regular monthly meeting of the Beth Israel Hospital Junior Auxiliary will be held Sunday, Feb. 2, at 3 p. m. at the Nurse's Home of the hospital, Brookline ave. Guest speaker will be Mr. Lester W. Dearborn, chief consultant on family relations at the Y. M. C. A. His subject will be "Preparing for a Successful Marriage." Tea will be served after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. MacPhie of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Van Kioff of Harwichport joined the Army and Navy colony at Old Point Comfort, Va., in celebrating at the large President's Birthday Ball at Virginia Beach, last evening.

DODGE WIDOW REMARRIES—Mrs. Annie Laurie Dodge, widow of Daniel G. Dodge, heir to the motor millions, married Dr. William A. Lange, a plastic surgeon, at Urbana, Ill., yesterday. Mrs. Lange was widowed 13 days after her first marriage when her husband drowned following injuries suffered in an accidental explosion. She inherited approximately $2,500,000.

THE RAF WOUNDED HEROES SPEAK

COLLINS BAY, Ont., Jan. 31—Seen from the air Collins Bay Training station is a mathematical arrangement of yellow, wooden, squat "huts" and hangars. It looked bleak as Flying Officer Terry Newman circled the field in his tiny Fairchild-24—a station taxi-ship that looked like a gnat beside the big Fairey-Battle bombers, ranged on the ground beneath.

For, Collins Bay is in a patch of snowy, winter-locked wilderness, its landing field an icy crust and corrugated with wind ripples. There's good game-hunting in the nearby forests.

The personnel posted there is "United Kingdom"—as is the Canadian military expression for intermingled groups of English, Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans and what not. A few are "Transportees", men who have seen war flying action and now, for reasons of wounds or technical experience, are tutoring fledgling youth from the four corners of the Empire how to release capsules of high explosives on Nazi targets—Canada's major industry today.

It was 5 o'clock "tea time", a function strictly observed at Collins Bay, and we went to the officers' mess looking for Pilot Officer Hubert Barron who had just been "gazetted" from the ranks. He was there, still wearing his sergeant's stripes and not yet having time to tailor himself to officer's gabardine.

INTRODUCING CHAP

My chaperone, Flight Lieutenant (they say "Leftenant" here) Charles Simpson (himself a former Cambridge University track captain and a bomber-officer with active experience over Norway), called Barron an "intriguing chap! Saw the worst of the story, wounded an all that . . . O, I say Barron!"

The ex-sergeant wheeled smartly with rigid formality, for he had been a soldier too long to enter promptly into the intimacies of officer life. "Yes sir," he said primly. He was reticent too about talking for publication—strictly against the RAF code, y'know! But Simpson, who had previously demurred against the same thing, reassured him, "Quite all right. C. O.'s permission . . . subject to censor an' all that sort of thing."

Barron thawed slowly. Yes! He'd flown a Fairey-Battle light bomber in the back areas of the Nazi army during the first days of the blitz. A bit of merry hell, quite! Piece-meal and grudgingly came out and then in a gradual articulate crescendo—for, once past the fear of "regulations," the RAF veterans loved to spin their tales.

When the Nazis had launched their blitz last May Barron had piloted his bomber from a base near Rheims, over the lines at Luxembourg and deep in the rear of the battle area.

FLY VERY LOW

"We flew very low at that time," he explained, "barely 50 feet. The strategy then—but since abandoned, was to spy out the approach of Jerry tank, troop and supply columns, then buzz off and steal through a deep-wooded valley, and catch them from the rear."

As a pilot, Barron and a companion bomber, spotted their quarry—a long train of tanks, armored Panzer trucks and mobile shock-troops, and scooted away behind some neighboring hills. It was a simple matter in that cross hatching of hump-backed hills and rutted valleys, he said, to sneak around a mountain crag! There was a medieval castle on top one hill, he said irreverently, "and terraced vineyards coming down. I remember looking up at the turrets and thinking, 'I'd like to see the inside'—your mind wanders amazingly at such times." And he told about once finding himself in a reverie about a cinema (movie) he'd once seen at Piccadilly while squinting through his bomb sight and seeing to spring his load on a Junker airdrome.

"That's something all airmen try to guard against," he said, "wandering inattention. Your mind gets mischievous! JUST OVER TREES"

"We banked around a mountain," resumed Barron, and came just over the tree tops. The Jerry column could hear us, but they didn't suspect that an English plane should dare to fly so low. Not a shot was fired. They didn't even look around! So we got 'em between our bomb sights, dropped the first stick squarely on their heads and gunned the motor to get clear of the blast. Then the second stick, as the forward section of the column craned their necks to see what happened—I could see their faces clearly, mouths open under their 'cool-scullies' (helmets). Then we dumped our second stick and opened up with our machine guns like spitting a herring down the middle. We left quite a wreck in that road, I bet—tanks and trucks scattered everywhere, craters in the ground, slumped figures lying about. Made quite a traffic jam."

It was on this raid that Barron was wounded—not above the bombed column, but 25 miles nearer home, still flying low to escape the overhead Messerschmitts.

NOT MUCH CHOICE

"We had the choice between the snappers (fighters)," said Barron, who wears the coveted D. F. M. "or the German ground guns—not much to choose either way. So we got chewed up pretty badly, chunks out of our wings, raps about the size of manholes in our fuselage and every so often a pom-pom (rapid-fire one pounder) whooshing through like punching holes in a tin can. I'm sitting in the pilot's bucket giving the old girl all the juice she'll take. She's pretty flustered by this time, and suddenly I fell as though a mule kicked me in the seat of my pants—not pain exactly. It doesn't hurt, not agonizing y'know, when you get shot—just like someone belted you a stiff jolt with a cricket bat."

"What did I do? Just took a long swing from my cognac bottle and kept on going," said Barron without a smile. Must've been an explosive machine gun bullet, because there was only a small hole in my thigh where it went in and a gap you could fit a tea-cup in where it came out. I'm spouting blood, but I'm shut off from my crew by a rear bulkhead so I kept squeezing above the wound with one hand, holding the stick with the other, and pushing the old boat for dear life."

REACHES AIRDROME

He made his home 'drome safely before collapsing, although, he said, "The crate was a complete 'write-off'—just skeleton bones and scaly skin of its original shiny self. What then? Oh, I got shipped to an M. R. S. (Medical Receiving Station) near Rheims," said Barron, in the casual manner of a tourist reciting a recent itinerary. "Then a C. C. S. (Casualty Clearing Station) at Epervy, then R. H. (Base Hospital) at Dieppe, then Liverpool—I was fit in two months."

The most noticeable thing about these battle conversations is the absence of biagadocchio or flamboyance with which the fighters relate their gruesome adventures. They talked with a perfunctory calm of a schoolboy reciting a classroom lesson. Only Squadron Leader Dr. Crox had evinced any emotion, and then over the plight of machine-gunned French refugees.

SHOOTS GERMAN

Barron testified, too, that he had seen Nazi Me. 109 fighters and Junker bombers fly low over retreating streams of French evacuees and pour bursts of machine gun and light cannon fire into their masses.

"Once near our airdrome at

AUSTEN LAKE

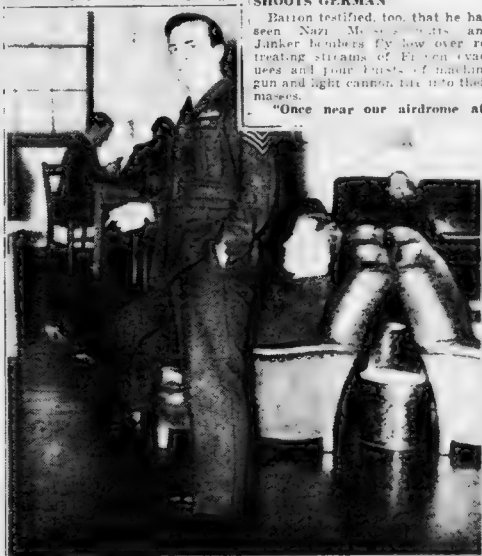

Editor's Note—This story by Austen Lake is the fifth of a series we consider to be the best yet produced for newspaper publication since the war began. Lake went to Canada in the great hope, lesser expectation, of being able to talk with RAF heroes invalided home from the Battle of Britain. With the permission of the RAF and Canada's censor, granted for the first time, he has tapped this source of true, breathless adventure stories. The result is a series that breathes of raw courage and deathless exploit in high endeavor—the stories of those "so few" to whom Churchill said that never in all history had so many owed so much.

Witry," he said, "a German fighter came down and peppered an inoffensive French farmer as he was plowing his field—just a lot of malicious foolishness. We could see it from our 'drome. Then a moment later an RAF Hurricane spanked down and shot the — (word deleted) into a nearby field. Before we could get over to him, the farmer had rushed into his house, got his fowling piece, an old blunderbuss—looked like something, from the French revolution—limbed the hedges and let that Jerry have the charge square in the face. We could see the fellow 'Kamerad-ling' to heat hell, with his hands up. But it was no go! He was dead when we came up. Can't say I blame the Frenchman."

He related how captured German airmen, subjected to British intelligence questions, often admitted frankly that they had blundered orders to fire on civilian workers—a "kind of utilitarian massacre," said Barron, with the object of hampering any useful output, whether farm produce or industrial gadgets. "Iuts war on a pretty brutal scale, eh wat?" he said wryly.

(Flight Lieutenant Simpson's great story will be told tomorrow.)

THE PEOPLE—the common citizenry—of the United States, no matter of what national or racial origin, DO NOT WANT WAR.

This is true also of the common people of every other country in the world.

If nation hates nation it is generally the fault of war-mongers, ambitious "diplomats" and demagogues.

That Americans are not a warlike people and that they do not desire participation in bloodshed are pointedly illustrated in a radio address by Mayor LaGuardia of New York, who says:

"We have demonstrated the possibility of creating a people from all the peoples of the world, and every race has brought something that has made our success possible.

"It is not unusual in New York to see an Italian barber chatting in friendly fashion with a Greek grocer or to see persons of English ancestry behaving sociably with those of German descent.

"These people have no quarrel with each other. They are improperly led, without their own consent, into fighting each other, through hatreds artificially engendered in other parts of the world."

The Mayor is right; the people of every country in Europe were led into this terrible war without their consent.

Let us beware that the same thing does not happen here.

Let Congress beware that it is not bulldozed into a war.

The men and women of warring nations of Europe who live in the United States have no quarrel with one another.

They fraternize continually.

And native-born Americans have no quarrel with those amongst us who were born in Europe or Asia.

It is our duty to ourselves and to our unborn generations to stay out of this war—while building an impregnable defense and giving all aid possible to brave Britain within the bounds of the Neutrality Law.

A war that is opposed by the American people would be an act of LESE DEMOCRACY.

If our people want war, let them say so.

But they have NOT said so—and neither has Congress, nor will it if it is not STAMPEDED into a declaration.

The people must keep Congress AWARE of the fact that the people whom Representatives and Senators are elected to serve DO NOT WANT WAR.

MAYOR KANE of Woburn thinks Boston is too small. But, unlike the thousands of other persons who entertain similar thoughts, he would do something about it.

Specifically, the suburban executive would combine the city of Boston with forty-three smaller surrounding municipalities to form a vast metropolis.

The increased population would give Boston the distinction of being the nation's third largest city instead of the present ninth largest designation.

Moreover, Mayor Kane assures, the millions of dollars that might be saved annually by the consolidation of school, police, fire and other municipal departments would drastically reduce the tax burden on real estate.

The suggestion is meritorious in many respects.

For all practical purposes our large suburban area is already a vital and important part of Boston.

But the political objections to the incorporation of the forty-three cities and towns into a single city are so numerous and tremendous that at least a generation of work and education would be required to overcome them.

Some day Mayor Kane's dream may become a happy reality.

But, just now, the odds are overwhelmingly against the metropolitanization idea.

THE COMMUNITY FUND campaign is lagging; with only a week to go, the drive total is approximately a million and a half dollars short of the goal.

In any other city this would be discouraging news.

Not so in Boston. We are proud of our hospitals, clinics and charitable agencies. We know how well they have assisted more than 400,000 needy men, women and children during the past year.

And, individually and collectively, we are resolved that the good work will continue for at least another 12 months.

That is why the Community Fund donations and pledges will more than exceed expectations in the few days that remain.

Bostonians have never failed to give generously to the sick, the aged and the destitute.

Even in the worst depression years they always answered the call of the Community Fund.

They certainly will not be less charitable now when jobs are plentiful and dollars more abundant.

On The Side

"WHY has there never been a dentist made the hero of a romantic novel or love story?" asks a dental nurse. She has no there, but I will make inquiries . . . When a married pair begin to look alike, as many undoubtedly do, I am informed it is the wife who invariably begins to look like her husband. Well, that would be all right for Barbara Stanwyck, but how about you lady? . . . Considering the oft repeated contention that three is the most lucky of numbers is recalled in the case of an Iowa man who so firmly believed this he gave all his children three letter names as follows: Jon, Ina, Ona, Rue, Sue, Hue, Eva, Fay and Max.

ASIDES: In answer to Poet Cowley's crack: "What is woman? Only one of nature's agreeable blunders," a young woman of Chicago says: "What is man? Only one of nature's disagreeable blunders, oozing self-conceit and dandruff. Brisbane was right when he said man is a freak of nature which will eventually shrink to the size of a marmoset and be toted about in the little woman's arms" . . . The inscrutable smile of Leonardo Da Vinci's Mona Lisa has received the most publicity and attention. But next time you see that picture look at lady's right hand; said to have been the most perfect hand ever painted. Students of feminine character are close observers of hands. We hear much of what Hollywood cinema cuties has the most beautiful legs, but never what feminine star has the most beautiful hands? When close-ups of hands are necessary in films most of stars have to use doubles.

SIDELIGHTS: "Women are going back to the flapper fashions of the twenties," says a style expert. What are "flapper fashions?" Don't tell me women are going to wear those short-skirted evening gowns again? . . . Most entertaining film I have seen lately is "Christmas in July" . . . "Has there ever been a song about Pittsburgh?" is a query. Can't remember any, sir. I believe Col. Harry Bittner of that city is working on a civic song which goes in part: "Though the skies may be cloudy and gray the sunshine of Pittsburgh is in the city's heart" . . . "Listen, simple," writes a Chicago admirer, "you're wrong about Ed Deleahanty making five home runs in one game; he made only four."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Thursday — I drove out yesterday noon to the lovely old house called "Woodley," which the Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson occupy. When we were in Washington many years ago, our children used to romp around these lawns with the William Phillips' children.

As I looked out the window at the snowy scene, I could almost see the little figures in snow suits of years gone by. We had a delightful lunch at Woodley with some of our New York friends there, as well as those living in Washington.

In the afternoon, there was a musical at which Mr. William Masselos played the piano. Miss Marilyn Crittenden played the violin with Mr. Prescott Barrows as her accompanist.

They all looked so young and attractive and the program was so well chosen that I enjoyed myself greatly and I hope all my guests had as pleasant a time.

WHILE TEA was still going on, I slipped upstairs with a few people who wanted to have a quiet talk with me. One of them, Mrs. William Denman of California, is working on the continuation of the development of cultural relations in the Pacific.

I am always interested to hear what they are doing in San Francisco, which is the center where these relations can best be developed.

IN THE EVENING, we all went to see Rose Franken's play, "Claudia." I think I have told you before that this city is an extremely difficult testing place for new plays. The theater is large and the audience is not, as a rule, very responsive.

Last night there was spontaneous laughter all over the house, and at times an audible tear. For myself, I can record a lump in my throat. I liked the "Claudia" of the book, and I like her in the play. The acting in this play is good, the cast is well chosen and it is a fine piece of work.

tle, but I am sure that will soon be changed. The lines are so good that you do not want to miss any of them, and I am glad that Miss Franken has kept some of the actual words and sentences which have always stayed in my mind since I read the book.

YOU CANNOT run away from pain, so you must make friends with it, whether it is pain in the body or pain in the heart. You must learn to let go of the things you love, not only giving them up for the next world, but giving them up here.

Things that we cling to and which should be free are torn from us with bitterness and never return. Things we willingly let go are saved and return to us with greater value than before.

We have just had lunch for all the kind artists who come to the every year to entertain for the President's birthday. My two neighbors at lunch, Mr. Launits Meichior and Mr. Wallace Berry, were delightful companions.

EDNA FERBER LIKES WHITE HOUSE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Edna Ferber was a White House guest at the dinner given by the President to the members of the U. S. Supreme Court . . . Miss Ferber observed the jurists and the Cabinet members—and then said: "This is wonderful. Even my house is more formal" . . . Igor Stravinsky visited the Cafe Rouge and heard Jimmy Dorsey's swing band. When Dorsey learned that the distinguished composer was present he decided to play a special number for him—Debussy's Concerto for saxophone . . . Stravinsky listened and then rushed out. "What's the matter?" he was asked. "Did you think it's sacrilegious for a swing musician to play Debussy?" . . . "No," explained Stravinsky, "but anybody who plays jazz like Dorsey should not waste his time on Debussy."

LOCAL NEWS: The Lepke prosecution for murder in Brooklyn is being delayed because Dist. Atty. O'Dwyer needs only one more witness—the missing "Mendy" Weiss . . . Brenano's will publish original French novels to corner the market. Its first will be DeKobra's "Emigre de Luxe" . . . The Canadian Government has borrowed Earle McGill of CBS to direct the first of its "Theater of Freedom" series, which will star Walter Huston . . . James Hayes and Robert Sher, who prosecuted the anti-trust case against the motion picture industry, are resigning from the Department of Justice to practice law in Washington . . . Horse meat now is sold in Britain for feeding dogs. The horse meat is dyed green so that the butchers won't make a mistake and sell it as beef.

SWANK: Amy Vanderbilt, author of "The Poor Vanderbilts" now appearing in the American Mercury, is telling of her great-aunt, the mother of the present Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr. . . She was determined upon ruling American society, and believed that her position was so acknowledged that the title "Mrs. Vanderbilt" was sufficiently identifying. Any additional identification, she believed, was superfluous—for there could be no other. Thus when a messenger brought her a large envelope stuffed with bonds—addressed to "Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt"—the lady haughtily returned them and told the messenger: "There is no Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt here. I am MRS. Vanderbilt."

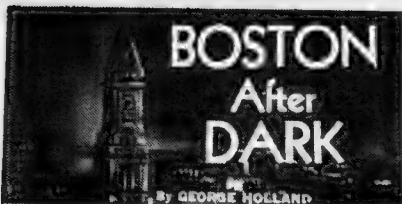

DEFEAT: Shortly before Ginger Rogers came to New York an independent producer asked her and 14 friends to inspect his newest picture. Miss Rogers agreed and suggested that the preview be held in one of the studio's projection rooms. "No," the producer told her, "we'll hold it in a Pomona theater. I want to get an additional audience reaction" . . . That night the producer took Miss Rogers and her 14 friends over the long route to Pomona. Just as his picture began, a sign was flashed upon the screen: "Smudge Tonight"—a warning to the citizens that a frost was due and smudge lamps should be lit as a preventive . . . The audience rushed out.

PRIDE: Larry MacPhail, who brought the Brooklyn Dodgers back into the major leagues, now is agitating for additional recognition for his constituency. He has asked for a ruling which would compel all National League teams playing against the Dodgers to live in Brooklyn hotels while the series is being played in that borough. He believes that as long as these rival teams are paid for playing in Brooklyn they should spend their money at Brooklyn hotels instead of in Manhattan . . . Leo Durocher, manager of MacPhail's Dodgers, always resides at the same hotel during the playing season—the Hotel New Yorker on W. 34th St.

ACCORD: When George White produced "Manhattan Merry" and Jimmy Walker ruled the town there was a scene in that musical showing New York's Mayor welcoming the principal character upon her return from abroad . . . Walker saw that show at least 20 times. And each time he would mount the stage and substitute for the show's Mayor during that scene . . . White presented a gold diamond-studded pass, admitting Walker to any George White attraction at any time. It bears the inscription: "To Jimmy Walker the best actor who ever worked for me" . . . Last week all the papers published photos of Walker visiting George's Gay White Way. "Am I still the best actor who ever worked for you?" asked Jimmy. "Because I haven't got the pass."

GINGER ROGERS

IT REMAINED FOR FRED ALLEN, the Boston-born wit, to think up the best joke yet thought up about THAT SONG . . . One of Mr. Allen's ablest female stooges begged leave to submit a bulletin to Mr. Allen's weekly audience, which, she said, would put an end to all swing bands and to all radio tenors.

MR. ALLEN PRACTICALLY rushed from the microphone to make way for the prophet of such a millennium . . . "You say," said Mr. Allen, "that you have a plan to end all swing bands and radio tenors . . . Well, well . . . Stand by all, for an announcement" . . . The Female Voice then announced: "I have just had a henna rinse!"

QUESTION (By MR. ALLEN): "You say you can end all swing bands and put our radio tenors out of business, and then you tell us that you have had a henna rinse . . . Who are you?" . . . ANSWER: (By the Female Voice): "I was formerly 'Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair'."

JOHNNY ANDREWS, THE PERSONABLE youngster who sings to his own piano accompaniment at the Versailles Bar, is getting a dozen requests a night for his own song, "Once Again" . . . Dick Mille collaborated . . . The number "He's a Great American," which was played by Bob Hardy's band at the President's Birthday Party, was featured also in New York . . . The news is that the song was written by City Councillor John C. Wickes and Gerald Magee, also of Boston.

GRETA GARBO'S EFFORTS at self-effacement during her New York visit have accomplished what her cattier critics are interpreting as the real purpose of Greta's hard work to be not noticed, namely, attention, and a lot of it . . . Intended or not, La Garbo's attempts to hide her identity have revived the old classic (I forget who created it) . . . The one which went: "She arrived with her usual fanfare of secrecy."

LOIS ANDREWS JESSEL actually worked on eleven trays of dishes in an attempt to while away the hours between shows at the Versailles . . . Lois did the drying, (machines do the washing) . . . Recountal of this exploit led one disbelieving listener—this one—to an examination of beautiful Lois' lovely hands . . . They certainly showed no signs of wear, tear or towel-pushing, and the finger-nails were long and unblemished.

"DON'T LET THE NAILS make you doubt me," the young singer exclaimed. "They're false . . . I lost all my real ones—by biting—just before we came North while watching George try to make an 'eight' the hard way . . . And what an 'eight' that would have been!" . . . An "eight" is a six-to-five shot (against the player and in favor of the house) and is, of course, a point on the dice . . .

THE WORD IS THAT if Mr. J. had made that point, much of the cost of the new villa he is building on property once owned by his friend, Sam Harris, in Palm Beach, would have been defrayed . . . It was high in the thousands . . . The migration north to Palm Beach from Miami is setting in, we hear, with many Broadway stars and song-writers among the new colonizers of the exclusive resort.

CHARLIE O'ROURKE HAS BEEN HUDDLING with Sheldon H. Fairbanks, owner of the Boston Bears,

CHARLIE O'ROURKE Goes Into a Huddle With Boston Bears

whose Sportsmen's Show opens Saturday at Mechanics Building . . . The proposition which intrigues the Madden thin man most—at this writing—is not a pro football job with either Mr. Hales' devastating Chicago Bears, nor with Mr. Fairbanks' up-and-coming Boston Bears . . . Charlie has an offer of a three-year-contract with a New York institution, and the salary is quite high for a first-year-out (of college) man.

TWO BOSTON GIRLS are in the cast of "Pal Joey" . . . Besides Lelia Ernst, Jean Castro is also from Boston . . . We should have mentioned up above that Bob Hardy's band will play the Holy Cross Alumni dinner-dance at the Copley-Plaza tonight.

FOUR-LEAF CLOVER PAT'S FLOWER

By Louella O. Parsons

Pat O'Brien

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31—Pat O'Brien must have been wearing a four-leaf clover when he signed that new deal with 20th Century-Fox. I say it is a lucky deal for Pat because 20th, perhaps more than any other lot, is a man's studio. They go in for those he-men opuses on a big scale and Pat, after his big hit in "Knute Rockne," is just the boy for them.

His contract is described as a non-exclusive deal calling for two pictures a year, which means that O'Brien will be free to make outside pictures. In the meantime, the whisper around the lot is that his first will be "Sabotage," the story of a secret airplane factory in the Middle West.

ELLEN DREW

SNAPSOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Betty Grable and Robert Stack had eyes only for each other at Cro's; Laz Whitney and Walter Brooks dancing to Coleman's music; Cy Bartlett and beautiful Ellen Drew acting as if they meant it.

The distinguished looking man with Lady Furness was Commander Seagriff of the British naval force, the beautiful woman with Reginald Gardner at the Mocambo, who looks like Hedy Lamarr, was really Mrs. Helen Mendenhall, San Francisco socialite; her husband is a friend of Reggie's.

Sandy Cummings will be called to the draft in five weeks; wonder if Maureen O'Sullivan will make a picture for Arthur Hornblow; they were dining at the Mocambo; Mrs. Sylvia Fairbanks and Raymond Hakim with friends at the Scheerzade.

Tony Martin has planned to New York for the Louis fight and to see his heart-beat, Lana Turner; Maria Montez, who was once Franchot Tone's big moment, with Rudy Vallee at the Wilshire Bowl; Alan Curtis is in bed with laryngitis.

Leslie Howard's friends are greatly worried. They have cabled him repeatedly for the last month and received no answer.

A LUNCHEON given Ernest Hemingway by Frank Freeman today at Paramount was thoroughly enjoyable. I had a chance to talk with the author of the best seller, "For Whom The Bell Tolls," and he has very definite ideas of casting. He says Annabella would fit the type of Maria perfectly. He also admires Ingrid Bergman, but as for Robert Jordan, there is only one actor in his mind and that is Gary Cooper.

Gary and his wife were at the luncheon, as was Mr. Hemingway's young bride. The Hemingways are on their way to China and he says he will probably write a novel later, but that he is so tired he wants to rest. It took him three years to write "For Whom The Bell Tolls"—very hard work, and the characters are really alive to him.

All of the top directors were present, but it is my hunch that C. B. DeMille will get this plum.

GEORGE RAFT is staging a hot campaign to talk Warners into giving his girl friend, Virginia Field, the lead in his next, "Danger Zone"—which they're now calling "Handle With Care." But the course of true love never did run smoothly—so there are a couple of hitches.

Warners are trying to get Harry Cohn's permission to borrow Rita Hayworth. Raft and Hayworth—or Raft and Virginia—should be box-office draws either way. It would be the third Rita has made on the Burbank lot including "Strawberry Blonde" and "Affectionately Yours."

Speaking of "Strawberry Blonde," Raoul Walsh, who directed it, is the fair-haired boy on the lot since the preview and why not, since "They Drive By Night" and "High Sierra" are cleaning up?

IF DOROTHY THOMPSON, stormy petrel of columnists, stirs up as much excitement in the political one-ers she's signed to make for Columbia as she does in her speeches and writings, they'll be well worth seeing. Not only will Dorothy speak her piece in her movie, based on international situations and which is titled "What's The Shooting For?"—but Wythe Williams, radio analyst, Linton Wells, world traveler, and William M. Shirer will also be on hand to add their comments.

As time goes on other famous national and international commentators will appear in the series which will permit you to see as well as hear well known columnists, writers and commentators. These shorts, if done well, could be extremely influential in molding public opinion.

26 I'm always intrigued when I hear someone say, "I consider that the ultimate gesture in courtesy," or "I think that is the 'last word' in politeness." Whatever the "that" is, it is bound to be something that compels the imagination, leads you to wonder if you agree with the judgment of the speaker. But whether you do or not, it's profitable to think about it. What do you consider the ultimate gesture in courtesy that a person can make to you? One answer certainly might be, I think, the hostess or host who, immediately after a party, writes notes to the guests to thank them for honoring her or him with their company. It is indeed a perfect bow to the words "the honor of your presence" and to "the pleasure of your company." I have known a few courtly people who had this grace, and all of them were people of exceptionally busy lives. Famous for this gracious custom was Arthur Brisbane, immediately after he had said "Good night" to his dinner guests wrote each one a note of thanks for "honoring me with your company the evening." This graceful bow is a star-lit interpretation of the Biblical urging that we be "given to hospitality," a shining proof that "life is short, but there is always time for courtesy." It's mentally and spiritually rewarding to think about polite attentions, great or small, made to other people. For it compels our thoughts to step on paths of kindness and social amiability and the good works of gentle manners. E. V. DURLING, nationally noted columnist, writes, "On The Side," regularly in the Boston Evening American.

Proparvulis Club Snow Train

PROPÄRVULIS CLUB'S annual "snow train" week-end is set for tomorrow and Sunday up at Plymouth, N. H., where a gala program has been arranged by the planning committee, headed by Helen Cushing of Jamaica Plain.

Skating on illuminated slopes, under the guidance of skilled instructors... skating, tobogganning and snowshoeing are a few of the many attractions. A dance will wind up Saturday's festivities.

Serving on Miss Cushing's committee are Marlon Deady, Clare Spinney, Helen Duff, Peggy O'Malley, Kathleen Donahue, Mary French, Kathleen Morrissey, Alice Kimball, Margaret Donahue, Helen T. Callahan and Evelyn Carey.

ELISE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems, regularly in the Boston American.

Today's Recipe

CASSEROLE OF SLICED BEEF

8 to 10 slices roast beef
1½ cups small pearl onions, or 1½ cups boiled onions
1 cup medium white sauce

Salt, paprika

Peel the onions and boil in salted water until tender, about 20 minutes. Place alternate layers of roast beef and onions in a buttered casserole, pouring white sauce over each layer of onions, and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

You Can Be Beautiful

Out-of-Doors Makeup Film

By ARLINE GOULD

IT CERTAINLY has sound sense... the idea of one of the most famous complexion glamorizing makeup films being made into the perfect protective as well as beautifier for winter sports by the addition of extra rich ingredients.

This has all the elements of perfection to us... for we believe in hand and body lotions in the right places... and think that especially fine oils and ingredients blended exquisitely are the due of the one only complexion a girl possesses!

This makeup film which has just arrived in a new version for ardent outdoorsites (and we recommend it especially for very tender, delicate skins) doesn't get within hailing distance of a skate or ski but has long been famous for the natural bloom it gives a skin... and this is said to be done through certain biological ingredients exclusive to it.

We do know that it is a powder on the face, but it is not greasy, and that it gives a amazing translucent to the skin. Of course... it was for this... that this same hot-house complexion could survive in the wintry outdoors if you played there for hours and hours... so the arrival of the new, richer, richer makeup film is something to rave about. Now you can keep the fine, hot-house skin in the face of blizzards!

There is still the same amazing non-oiliness, though the addition of extra oils in the film is enough to protect the most fragile skin from shivering.

Though it is in no sense a "cover-up," it is astounding how this film glosses over softens and minimizes all sorts of blemishes and lines.

If you'd like complete information on this richer, more protective version of a famous glamorizing makeup film, phone Arline Gould, L.I.F.E. 4008, week-days, except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Friday, Jan. 31, 1941

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—You are a busy, meditative, individual, pleasant and talkative; usually quick in thought, yet often slow in action. The busier you are in some useful occupation, the happier and freer from wrong associations and much of your life is worthy of high education. Should avoid unnecessary, hampering red tape methods. Get quickly at the bottom of things. Carry out each day's schedule with little fuss, much quiet and efficiency. Look far ahead!

LUCKY NUMBER—Today—lucky number is 47.

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is taupe.

Send 15 cents and larger self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston Evening American, Box 2214, Boston, for an individual horoscope, personal guide and lucky calendar for the first six months of 1941, giving for day and month you were born.

Banish Your Stage Fright

28 EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 31, 1941

THERE IS NO AGONY like that of self-consciousness.

Appearing like a prisoner up for sentence, instead of the charming woman she really is. What a poor impression she makes speaking before her P. T. A! Eyes glued to the floor, she clutches desperately at her purse, mumbles as her audience can scarcely hear her.

But with a few home lessons in public speaking how noted, at ease she could be! Knowing parliamentary rules, dos and don'ts for speakers, even the most timid quickly overcome their stage fright. Just the way you stand, where you look, makes all the difference in the world in the audience's reaction and your own confidence.

Keep your weight firmly planted on both feet. Leave your gloves on both hands at sides or loosely folded. Then, if you look directly at your listeners and give them an occasional smile, you can't miss! You, vice, too, sounds more authoritative when you learn to "pack your tones against your belt." Practice breathing in slowly and steadily, pushing out your tummy and lower ribs and lifting your chest. So you'll sound clear as a bell open your lips and teeth when you talk.

With such helpful study you'll no longer have to take a back seat in P. T. A. church or club affairs. And knowing parliamentary rules gives you added confidence. What's more, by "I rise to a point of order." You may say this in meeting when a speaker has strayed from a subject or when rules or constitution have been violated.

Speak up confidently in public! Our 43-page booklet, Self-Instruction in Public Speaking, tells in detail how to prepare and deliver speeches, how to develop your voice. Gives parliamentary rules, sample speeches for introductions, welcomes other occasions.

Serve More Fish for Health Economy

By MARTHA LEE

FISH IS SERVED on Friday, if at all, in many households. For every one who doesn't find its service to one day a week because it is such a healthful food, chockful of essential elements which are so necessary to our well being.

All kinds of fish are complete protein foods, containing all the ingredients necessary for body maintenance and growth. Salt water fish are known to be specially rich in minerals.

An excellent means of bringing variety to the table is to have fish at least twice a week. There are many kinds to choose from and in this way of cooking them, so fish need never become monotonous. Today fish is available either fresh, in cans, or in the quick frozen fillet form.

The recipes given here today are in response to several requests for "different" ways to serve fish.

BAKED HALIBUT AU GRATIN

Place a slice of halibut steak in a baking pan. Season the fish with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (325 deg. F.) for 15 minutes. Cover with a mixture of soft bread crumbs and grated Parmesan or American cheese, dot with butter and continue baking for about 15 minutes longer or until the crumbs are browned and the fish tender.

MINCED SCALLOPS

1 1/2 lbs. scallops
1/2 cup dry white wine

1/2 tsp. salt
Dash of cayenne
1 tsp. grated onion
3 tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. flour
1 cup scallop stock
1/2 cup cream or evaporated milk
1 cup grated cheese
1/2 cup buttered crumbs

Chop scallops fine. Place in sauce pan with wine, salt, cayenne, and onion. Simmer 10 minutes. Drain, reserving stock for sauce. Melt butter, stir in flour. Add 1 cup scallop stock and cream. Stir until thick, add grated cheese, and drained scallops. Place in scallop shells, sprinkle with buttered crumbs, and brown in hot oven 400 deg. F.

SALMON CAKES

1 lb. can salmon
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. minced onion
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 egg, well beaten
Salt
Pepper

Turn salmon into mixing bowl and remove skin and bones, but do not drain. Mash and add other ingredients. Form into small cakes or press into flattened shells. Sprinkle with seasoned flour and brown cakes in hot fat or put crab shells in hot oven (400 deg. F.) and bake 20 minutes or until brown. Makes about 6 servings.

Serve with a well condensed cream sauce or cream.

Quick frozen fillets are convenient to serve and are very economical, too, as the home cook need only pay for the fish that she will use. When she gets the fillets at home, she need not be unwary about the quality of the fish. It is usually good and fresh. There is no cleaning necessary.

NEW ENGLAND FISH CHOWDER

Try cut 1/2 cup diced fat pork in kettle until crisp and brown. Add 1 cup scallop stock and 1 cup water and saute slowly. Add 1 cup hot water and 2 cups scallop stock and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 5 minutes.

SALMON CAKES

Turn salmon into mixing bowl and remove skin and bones, but do not drain. Mash and add other ingredients. Form into small cakes or press into flattened shells. Sprinkle with seasoned flour and brown cakes in hot fat or put crab shells in hot oven (400 deg. F.) and bake 20 minutes or until brown. Makes about 6 servings.

PERCH DAKED WITH TOMATO

Separate 1 lb. of perch fillets, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown in hot oil. Add 1 cup tomato sauce and 1 cup water and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 5 minutes.

SWAN is here!

THE FIRST REALLY NEW
WHITE FLOATING SOAP
SINCE THE GAY NINETIES!

BETTER? LADY, LADY—
WAIT TILL YOU SEE SWAN!
WAIT TILL YOU FEEL IT—SMELL IT—SUDS IT! SWAN IS FULL OF GRAND SURPRISES. IT'S BETTER
IN 8 DIFFERENT WAYS!

1. Look! Swan's whiter!
Pure as imported castile!
Pure! Why, you couldn't buy a purer soap! And Swan's as mild as imported castile—perfect for baby. Ask your doctor about this in his medical journals.

2. Look! Suds 2 times faster!
Swan breaks into creamy, lasting lather 2 times faster than old-type floating soaps!
3. Look! Makes hard water soft-hearted!
Swan gives you abundant, creamy-rich suds in water "hard enough to cut diamonds!"

4. Look! Swan is firmer!
Lasts, Lasts, Lasts!
Here's another surprise! Feel Swan! It's more solid... harder by far than old-time floating soaps. Swan has far less moisture. It's bound to last longer—bound to go further!

5. Look! Breaks smoother—easily!

Just break Swan by hand and you'd think it was sliced. No jagged, rough edges; no wasteful, crumbly surface. It breaks into two handsome cakes; one for kitchen, one for bathroom.

6. Look! Smells fresh as a daisy!
Swan smells cleaner, fresher! Not strong or harsh!

7. Feel how smo-o-oth!
And no wonder... for it's creamed 64 times a minute. That's why Swan is smoother, finer-textured like finest toilet soaps.

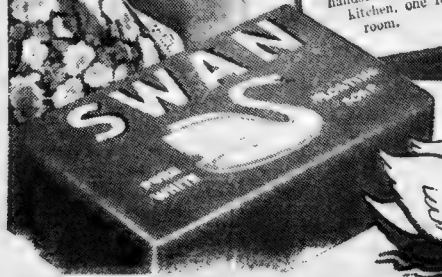

8. Look! More real soap for your money!

There's actually far less moisture in Swan than in other floating soaps. It's old-type floating soap. It's more real soap for your money. You don't have to store a supply to dry out. We harden Swan for you.

Look! Swan bobs up all over the house!

Double your money back if...
Compare Swan with any other floating soap for face, hands, bath; for baby; for silks, dishes, woodwork. If Swan doesn't win—mail wrapper to Swan, Cambridge, Mass., and we'll send you double your money back. Offer closes February 14, 1941.

Just Make Him Ask Date!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a widow in my middle thirties, and there is a certain man (about the same age) in whom I've very much interested. I see him every day, but just saying "Good-morning" doesn't bring him any closer to me.

He's a local business man, polished and a gentleman of just the type I want to know. He attends and belongs to all the men's clubs.

I'm a little reserved and no, well acquainted where I live. Haven't had a date since coming to this town. I'm neither striking nor a fancy dresser, although I'm neat and can pass on my looks. The position I now hold gives me a chance to meet the public, mostly men, but I don't care about any of them but this one. Can you tell me how to go about being noticed by this man, to be asked out by him? He doesn't go "steady" with anyone, and isn't married. Can you help me?

HOPEFUL
The gentleman isn't married, nor does he go steady and you know him well enough to wish him good morning. The rest should be comparatively easy to anyone with a little imagination. After those cut-and-dried "good mornings" why can't you manage to detain him with a question or two.

The other day a girl in your identical position wrote me she managed to become acquainted and have a date with one of these shy violets, by asking him if he was related to the Smiths, an entirely fictitious family. He told he was not related to them, and after that stopped for a little chat until he asked for a date.

WHAT'S the smartest way to get results?

I know two salesmen—both intelligent, hard working, ambitious—as evenly matched as a couple of golfers could be. Yet, during the year, Ed White makes twice as much as Gray. Why? Here's the story—what do you make of it?

When Gray tackles a new prospect he does what every smart salesman is supposed to do. Sizes things up. Makes a careful survey of every possible difficulty and potential danger. It's interesting to watch him. He mentally goes over the field with a microscope, looking for pitfalls. Tabulates every conceivable handicap.

Then he prepares an elaborate program for meeting all these theoretical problems.

"Nobody's going to catch me napping," says Gray grimly—and nobody does. It's impossible to spring a tick on Gray that he hasn't already anticipated. He's certainly smart. Yet, somehow, in spite of this smartness, he doesn't get remarkable results.

ED WHITE, on the other hand, uses an entirely different method. Instead of making preliminary surveys and grave preparations, Ed just breezes into a situation. He must realize the possible difficulties, for he's plenty shrewd, but he doesn't spend time or energy getting ready for grief.

Old Mr. Bitters may have a reputation in three states for cussedness—Mrs. Tatle may be a notorious shrew and tightwad—but you'd never guess it by watching Ed White. He greets everyone with the same merry June smile, the same air of confidential, long established friendship.

Confidence—that's Ed's long suit. He expects people to be nice to him. He expects people to work with him. And his expectation succeeds. Of course, they sometimes take advantage of his seeming carelessness, but in the main, they seem to want to prove that his faith in their friendliness is justified.

Gray suspects. White expects.

GRAY USES his energy in getting ready for grief. White passes himself for pleasure and profit.

They both work hard. They both find what they're looking for, all either Gray or Whites. Which So does everyone else, for what is your method?

52
EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 31, 1936

I F YOU'VE SEEN the picture, "Sour Mountain," you probably are still marvelling at the performance turned in by Laverne Weeks, the 13-year-old mountain girl who tore at the heart strings of audiences by her singing of the songs set to mountain music.

She came into the picture dressed up in what looked like a grown woman's dress cut down not too feebly to cover her scanty little body. Her black hair was combed tight to her head and two pig-tails dropped on either side of her little triangle of a face. Her sad, intense brown eyes burned with fervor even on this celluloid and her mouth with its fluttering upper lip and its lower one held you as she sang that lovely old ballad, "Fond Affection." Remember it!

The Principal Character in "The World's So Wide"
LAVERNE WEEKS, a mountain girl who knows mountain songs and sings them so well she is rushed into the movies where she enlarges her repertoire but retains her native shyness.

The World's So Wide

By Charles McGuirk

"The world's so wide I cannot cross it."
"The sea's so deep I cannot wade."
"I'll just go hire me a little boatman."
"To row me across the stormy tide."

When the picture had been running two months, Mammoth, which produced it, had received 25,000 letters of appreciation from all over the country. All of them started off by mentioning Laverne Weeks.

Some of them wondered where Mammoth had found her. Others remarked that Katharine Hepburn's makeup was the best she had ever accomplished when she played Laverne Weeks in the picture. A few demanded to know whether the picture company was going to it that the child was getting her education between pictures because she was too vivid a personality to remain unlettered.

A great many of the letters were addressed to Laverne herself. They praised her for her work and warned her against the pitfalls that would confront her in that gilded Hollywood, which consumes the souls of young girls. There are four of the writers proposed meetings and sent detailed and very interesting descriptions of their writers. All these were over 50.

Laverne saw none of these letters, if course. They were shunted over to the Publicity Department. A few of them were read. Most of them were bad and stuck in storage. Mammoth followed the old and proven rule never to let its actors know what audiences think of them. Long ago, the movie picture industry found that what actors don't know never hurts them, especially about their beauty or their capabilities.

A WISE CHILD
Not that any of the letters would have made any difference to Laverne, even if she had been given a chance to spell them out carefully in this arrives at their meaning. Laverne was unspoiled, not because of any particular cheer on modesty, but because she had been at grips with a life brutal and uncompromising since her mother held her by her fingers and told her, "Go ahead and walk, Vernie."

She was born in Herrodsville, Tenn., and her mother, Liza, was crowded 15 when she became a mother. She was a Yankan and the Yankan women were known in the mountain country as "slow marmers." Esther, Liza's mother and Laverne's grandmother, was almost 16 when she was wed. She was an old hag of 33 when Laverne, the first baby, came. Sam and Weeks, father of Laverne and of Zeke, Annie, Belle and Clyde in the four years following, was in his middle 20s when he "maided" Liza. He had five acres of land on the mountainside near the top and his vegetables and corn grew on the bias. But they grew because in the first days of marriage Sam was ambitious.

Sam got "tired" along about 1930 because he'd been that they was a Depression and ev'ry in United States was a starvin'. He did work for three years after he got the first news but along about 1933, he heard that the President Roosevelt was a feedin' all the po' people withouten you had to work so Sam promptly moved himself and his brood onto Relief.

Laverne was eight then and the other four were from one to four years younger right down the line. Sam got so he was not only "tired" but drunken on the sweet powerful corn liquor which he made with painstaking diligence in a still back in a hollow. He got to abidin' with the loafers in Herrodsville and to hangin' around the town center where his name became an abbreviation.

The child watched his deterioration as she would watch the dry-drot of an old tree. There was no anger in her heart when Pappy came staggering home and beat up Mammy. It was a phenomenon like a lightning storm or a drought. It just made her work all the harder to help Mammy with the unending tasks inside and out, that present themselves on a starving farm.

A ROMANTIC MAN
Clyde Breeks came into Laverne's life when she was 12. He came astirring and splunking on an old guitar. He was a lean mountaineer with a clear, tanned triangular face on which the black beard grew heavy. He had gentle eyes and a quavering voice.

He was a mountain singer and he moved among the Southerners singing of people and things that the world forgot 200 years ago.

He came into the firelight of the Weeks' cabin one night in early fall and he sang for all of them, plunking his old guitar. Here sang that "Fond Affection." You know—"I give you back your ring and letters."

"And the picture I have loved so well."

"And henceforth we will meet as strangers."

"But I can never say farewell." Laverne listened to him hunkered over, her elbows on her knees, her chin cupped in her hands. Feelings she had never known swept over her and bathed her. Sadness and a yearning and a worship of this tall stranger and his juke box.

"There's only three things that I could wish for," Clyde quavered.

"That is my coffin, shroud and grave."

"And when I'm dead please don't weep o'er me."

"Or kiss the lips you have betrayed."

Pappy started crying, sobbing over his chin as he lay on the floor, befuddled with corn. Clyde lay down his guitar and looked at Laverne with his soft eyes.

"Git me a drink of water, girl," he begged softly. "This here singin' is dry work."

"Think I could git to sing like that, ever?" Laverne asked him as she handed him a dipper dripping with water.

"You kin if your heart's a singin'," Clyde told her and drank. "It don't make no difference if your voice was as rough as a jay hawk's. Come your heart's a singin', then you kin sing."

He stayed the night, curled on a pallet on under the eaves. Laverne lay in the darkness listening to his soft breathing. She wanted to go over and lay by him like she did by Mammy on a cold night. She whispered, "Come your heart's a singin' then you can sing."

He went away in the morning and that day Pappy got himself killed by staggering in front of a truck. When the news came, Laverne was quavering softly.

"There's only three things that I could wish for," her father and she watched them tuck him into the rough pine coffin they had built for him. She saw him lowered into the grave and she thought, Pappy got him the three things Clyde wished for in the song.

"That is my coffin, shroud and grave."

Now life pressed hard upon the Weekes. There was no unending toil and there was little food. She heard of Hollywood and saw her first picture one delirious night in Herrodsville and she craved to go there, just as she craved to go to Heaven. And the family went when a Yankan, a rich Yankan who had a truck, came for them and bundled them in and drove them westward, ever westward.

In Los Angeles they starved with thousands of others in a camp in a holler. But Laverne didn't starve. She disliked to see her mother waste away day by day. She stole away from the camp one night and she got to Hollywood Boulevard and she stood before a well lighted palace in front of which jeweled cars stopped and people dressed like angels entered. She sang:

"I give you back your ring and letters."

"And the picture I have loved so well."

"And henceforth we will meet as strangers."

"But I can never say farewell."

And never think of the still walk around her. She picked it all up, nickels, quarters, dimes and pennies. It amounted to three dollars and fifteen cents.

"JUST THE TYPE"

She was back at the same place the next night, singing the last verses. She was there the night after, singing all three verses. That night Sol Westell heard her. Sol was producing the picture, "Sour Mountain." He watched and listened unbelievably. "Look!" he said reverently. "She's just the type."

So that's how they found Laverne Weeks, you thousands of inquirers. No, the movies won't spoil her, at least for a long while. She lives in a real house, one of a cluster around a patio. She's a "lavin' to play the guitar. She knows lots of songs now, "Lonesome Road," "I Got a Girl at the Head of the Holler," "Coon Can," "Ma's Son," "Oh, Bury Me Beneath the Willow." But her favorites is "Fond Affection." You know, "The world's so wide, I cannot cross it."

"The sea's so deep I cannot wade."

"I'll just go hire me a little boatman."

"To row me across the stormy tide."

THE END.

ROCKINGHAM PARK, which was one of the leading advocates of the Horse Retirement Fund, has notified Arthur Gaignard, president, that it has cancelled its membership in the organization.

"The original purpose of this fund," said Lou Smith, "was to retire old horses to the farm. We felt that such a move was in the interest of racing. There had been horses racing at New England tracks who were unfit, but their owners and trainers felt they should be given opportunities to try to win purses.

"I was for the Horse Retirement Fund as this was a way to retire the old horses, give the horsemen a small amount of money for their horses, and also to protect the public. I have always felt it was unfair to permit horses that had very little chance of winning to start against thoroughbreds who were in fine condition.

"This idea of the fund appealed to the public. Everyone was anxious to see the worn-out horses in green pastures enjoying the closing years of their lives.

"Since then the plan of the fund was changed. There is talk of permitting horsemen in need to receive money from the fund. It is suggested that these horsemen might be retired to a home. Try and get even a broken horseman to stay away from the track with its excitement."

Under the Horse Retirement Fund, the tracks and horsemen donated part of their earnings to the fund.

Rockingham Park's official letter on the subject follows:

Arthur Gaignard, President,
Horse Retirement Fund,
New Orleans, Louisiana.

Dear Mr. Gaignard:

When The New Hampshire Jockey Club, Inc., joined and donated to the Horse Retirement Fund, it was with the understanding that the money collected would be used to retire from racing horses that were too cheap and unfit to race. The plan was to relieve the congested condition at various tracks and to give horsemen with worthwhile animals an opportunity to earn a living, as well as to protect the public who, after all, makes racing possible.

The policy of the Horse Retirement Fund has so changed that its initial purpose no longer seems to be the important factor and its policy, as now presented, is of no interest to our association.

We are, therefore, notifying you that as of this date we are cancelling our membership in your organization and will not donate to the Horse Retirement Fund under its existing policy.

Yours very truly,

THE NEW HAMPSHIRE JOCKEY CLUB, Inc.

Signed: Louis Smith,
Vice-President and Executive Manager.

BABE RUBENSTEIN, writing from Miami, Fla., says Bimelech has been working lightly, and that if he is a starter in the Widener Cup race that he will go to the post a favorite. Babe says there will be a poor field in the Florida classic.

"Jockey Don Meade has been riding in superb form," says Babe, "and outside of Eddie Arcaro the other riders who are here are mediocre. . . A $2500 plate, Jaycee, raced three quarters of a mile in 1:10 the other afternoon, and that is flying. . . Ben Lister's horses have been in the limelight much this season. . . Bull Brier has looked particularly good.

"The best two-year-old of those that have raced is Treemontier.

"Commissioners Connors, Nelson and Allen of the Massachusetts Racing Commission gave many helpful suggestions during their attendance at the convention of the national racing commissioners. . . I was pleased to see Charley Connors elected vice-president of that organization as he has worked hard and faithfully for the best interests of racing. . . Massachusetts under Commission rule has been free of racing scandals.

"Dave Wilson, as usual, has been pretty hot at the track, and has come up with his share of winners. . . Dave has also cashed a few bets himself. . . I am looking forward to seeing you at Hialeah next month."

JOE LOUIS is expected to score a kayo when he collides with "Red" Burman in a 15-round championship bout at the New York Garden tonight. . . Louis' timing of punches should be better than it was for Al McCoy. . . The champion has had plenty of boxing during his training, and expects to be going on high when he faces Burman.

Burman will enter the ring hoping he will be able to get across a lucky punch that will tip the title holder over. . . All of Louis' opponents recall how Max Schmeling knocked the "Brown Bomber" out. . . It is very unlikely that Burman could accomplish such a feat.

Off their records, Louis should win by a knockout inside of ten rounds.

EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 31, 1941

Fenske Still Rated Tons

By LEWIS BURTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Sombore Pete Waters, iron-bitted Manhattan College track coach, spoke for an army of experts when he predicted before the Track Writers' Ass'n that Chuck Fenske will win the Wanamaker Mile at the Millrose games come Saturday.

No one asks whether Fenske is through, because everyone who is at all interested is quite convinced he's still there.

Busy with his post-graduate studies at the University of Wisconsin and with his work as state supervisor in the National Youth Administration, Fenske has gone rather light on training ever since he won eight straight races in the 1940 indoor season.

He passed up cross-country completely last fall and he hasn't the background for these early meets that such assiduous harriers as Walter Mehl, John Munski and Leslie MacMittell, Wanamaker opponents and his recent conquerors have packed in.

INTENSIVE PROGRAM

Fenske has checked in at the Paramount Hotel today. He will work at Columbia's South Field, and he will run at the Millrose and Seton Hall College meet next Monday in Jersey City. He may stay on all next week, too, because the Boston A. A. games are to follow. It is an intensive program Fenske has cut out for himself.

More than putting himself in shape by practice, he'll do it by competition.

The chances are that as the season progresses, he will become more dangerous proportionately to the rest of the field.

The man who eclipsed many of Glenn Cunningham's greatest performances last year isn't going to be pushed in the background by a batch of 4:08 millers.

MUNSKI STILL COMING

They'll have to do better than that.

In that connection it is worthy of note that John Munski who won the Princeton, Sugar Bowl and Veterans of Foreign Wars mile races and lost by only two feet to Mehl's 4:07.7 last Saturday, is convinced that he's still coming.

'To Play for Bees,' Says Wes Ferrell

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 31 (AP)—Wes Ferrell, the first major league pitcher to win 20 games in each of his first four seasons in the big time, said here he expected to play with the Boston Bees this year.

Ferrell, one-time member of a famous brother battery with Rikie Ferrell, said he understood stood a contract was enroute here and that when it arrives "I'll sign."

SPORT-O-GRIMES

The recent Prout games didn't improve the Knights of Columbus' rating with the press. . . Win Green didn't know his status with the Red Sox until he dropped in at Fenway Park yesterday. The first hint that he received that he was still trainer was when he saw the 1941 roster. "Greenie" has never been a hold-out so our guess is that it was perfectly safe for Eddie Doherty to use his name in vain.

Paul Waner, Little Poison, will wind up with the Dodgers. He's been on his good behavior since the close of the 1940 season and will help the MacPhails. . . Irving Leo Bambrick, one of the state's better known golfers, went off the deep end last Sunday. . . The lucky lady was Dorothy Bushnell of Hartford, Ct. . . If Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees doesn't think so much of Buster Mills defensively, wait until he sees Frenchy Bordagary convert a line single into a triple.

Milt Stofner, the portlander who labored for the Bees before he was sold to the Cincinnati Reds, is wintering at Sarasota. . . The New York Rangers are through as Stanley Cup contenders. They've gone over the hill. Did Broadway get them? . . . Jock Hutchinson, the veteran golf professional, is at the Bobby Jones G. C. at Sarasota, Fla., where Wes Ferrell, the temperamental hurler purchased a home after his marriage. . . We understand that Rikie Ferrell is also a benedict.

Dick Burkhardt, the 20-year-old centerfielder from Bellevue, Ky., who was signed by Sec. John J. Quinn for the Bees' farm club at Evansville, must be a real prospect. He was recommended by Johnny Cooney who has never been known to jump at conclusions. . . Although he has been trying to get Rhode Island State "out of the sticks" for years, Coach Frank Keane never received any national notice until he "made" John Kieran's column. Now that they have made a successful debut in New York the Rhode Island Rams are on their own.

OLD BATTERY MATES HONORED BY SCRIBES

Ancient John Cooney and old Jimmy Wilson, a year ago a couple of "washed up" old battery mates, today found the end of their baseball careers beginning all over again—both loaded down with honors by the Boston baseball writers.

Yes, Coach Cooney of the Bees and Coach Wilson of the Reds definitely had been labelled "has-beens." They had been great players in their day, but they had come to the end of the playing trail.

They had started as battery mates with New Haven years ago. A sore arm forced John to take to the outfield in 1928, while Jimmy had lingered on at relief catching duties until it seemed he was even too old for that.

But today, Wilson was named as displaying the greatest baseball feat of the last year by the Boston writers, while Cooney was given the title of the most valuable player to be found on either Boston club, the Bees or the Red Sox.

Wilson was given recognition for stepping back into harness in the World Series, catching six of seven games and being the big gun in leading the Reds to the title.

Cooney, of course, stepped back into the Bees lineup and ended up the season with a .318 batting average, almost winning the title.

The old battery mates stole most of the honors, although young Dominic DiMaggio, Red Sox outfielder, saving something for the youngsters by being awarded the title of the "outstanding rookie" of 1940.

Toastmaster for the annual event was Jack Conway, sports editor of the Boston Evening American.

The gathering was addressed also by Warren Giles, business manager of the Reds; Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox; Bob Quinn, president of the Bees; John Kieran, New York sports columnist; Neal O'Hara, Boston columnist; Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox and Governor Leverett Saltonstall.

Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the principal speaker and hailed baseball and other sports as "America's answer to dictatorship."

Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the principal speaker and hailed baseball and other sports as "America's answer to dictatorship."

"In view of the fact that Sam Snead has never won a major title," declared Runyan, "possibly you believe that I'm rating him far too high, when I tell you that, in my opinion, golf has never seen his equal."

"I've studied Sam Snead since he made his debut on the winter circuit. He has everything, temperament, competitive spirit, distance and a most remarkable, particularly for a slugger, touch from just off and on the greens."

Paul Runyan lists Byron Nelson the ex-U. S. open champion as the No. 2 golfer and the next eight in the following order: Ben Hogan, Craig Wood, Clayton Heffner, Ralph Guldahl, Ed Oliver, Lloyd Mangrum, Lawson Little and Jimmie

Jesse in Comeback

Owens Eyes 440 Record

COLUMBUS O., Jan. 31 (AP)—Six years ago the headlines screamed as Jesse Owens, Ohio State's "Ebony Antelope," set three world track records and tied another in a Big Ten meet.

Five years ago his fame spread around the world as he won three individual events and led the U. S. sprint relay team to victory in the Olympics at Berlin.

BACK IN COLLEGE

Last year, tucked down in a corner of the sports pages, appeared a paragraph that the great sprinter was bankrupt.

The years between had seen Jesse turn professional to "cash in." Radio guest star appearances, baton-swinging with an orchestra, tap-dancing on stages—all helped fill his pockets with gold.

Then fading fame forced him to exhibition races against horses and other less profitable ventures.

Today, his money gone, Jesse is back at Ohio State to finish his collegiate education. He looks toward a coaching and teaching career. He's a professional, but he plans one more fling at time and distance before putting away his winged shoes.

The dusky speed king, never beaten in the dashes, low hurdles or broad jump in his college days, wants to take a crack at the 16:2-second quarter-mile record—and to extend his record 26 feet 8 1/2 inches broad jump mark beyond 27 feet.

NO REGRETS

Still sleek and speedy despite his big layoff from the cinder paths, Owens said:

"I believe I can get the 440-yard record down to 46 seconds. I'm going to ask Dan Ferris of the A. A. U. to approve a plan for me to run against time at some of the big summer meets. Also, I'd like to run and jump in exhibitions at some of Ohio State's dual meets."

"I have no regrets, for it was great to be up there for a while. But now my feet are back on the ground."

Because of his other specialties, Owens was never permitted to run the quarter-mile but Ohio State's track coach, Larry Snyder, always believed the dusky speed demon could have been the world's best at that distance.

Now Snyder is helping him get into shape again as Jesse prepares for a comeback campaign.

Sports Honor Given Wounded Canadian Hero

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31 (INS)—Flight Lieut. Jean Paul Desloges, Canadian aviator who lost an eye in the Battle of Britain, today was honored by Philadelphia sporting writers as the "most courageous athlete of 1940."

It wasn't so much for Desloges' actual athletic prowess, although he won letters in hockey, football, swimming and tennis at the University of Ottawa in 1933. It wasn't for his notable career as a Northwest Mounted policeman from 1933 to 1937.

But—in 1937—the 1100 diners at the writers' 37th banquet were told—Desloges entered the Royal Canadian Air Force and went overseas last June. Then, partially blinded in a duel with a Messerschmidt, he spent eight weeks in a hospital and returned to Canada as an instructor.

Austen Lake, in his great series, "The RAF Wounded Heroes Speak," told in the Evening American on Tuesday of Lieut. Desloges' air battles in the present war—Editor's note.

Penn's Frank Reagan was voted the most valuable player of 1940, while Jarrin, Jim Kimbrough, All-American fullback from Texas A. & M. emerged as "most outstanding athlete."

Ex-Cushing Star Guest Speaker

Lieut.-Col. Howard W. Robbins of Lexington, World War veteran, and U. S. Commissioner of the Federal Court in Boston will be principal speaker at the annual joint installation of officers of the 301st Infantry Veterans Association, AEF, next Sunday evening at Hotel Minerva, Boston, when Lieut. Joseph J. Callahan will be installed for a fifth term and Mrs. Charles Latanovich for a second year.

Both Col. Robbins and Commander Callahan were great athletes while classmates at Cushing Academy. Callahan entered the professional field and played in the Canadian and New England Leagues. He then saw big league service and played with the old Braves and Washington Senators. Col. Robbins, after graduation, entered Syracuse University, where he was named "All-America." He is considered an international authority on rowing, and annually referees all the big rowing races. He has several times represented America in the European events.

Snead, Demaret Open Golf Choices

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 31 (INS)—Sammy Snead, the Hot Springs, Va., professional, and defending champion Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., were rated co-favorites today as the nation's top-flight golfers prepared to tee off in the first round of the $5000 72-hole Western open.

A total of 140 golfers, including a handful of amateurs, was entered.

3,000,000 SKIERS SPEND $20,000,000

By TAP GODENOUGH

SKIING is not only a sport; it is a BIG BUSINESS! The hickory industry in all its phases is estimated as amounting to $20,000,000 per year.

There are about 3,000,000 skiers in the country and they all spend a lot of money on their favorite sport, the golf of the winter. This season, which is the best in five years, should find the skiing fraternity jingling their change to the tune of $3,000,000 for ski, bindings, and accessories; $6,000,000 for clothes; $500,000 for instruction; $3,000,000 for transportation; $3,000,000 for lodging; and $4,500,000 for such incidentals as ski tows, cigarettes, liquors, movies, taxicabs, telephone calls, telegrams, and the like.

So you can see that snowflakes literally represent pennies from heaven.

Local ski shops have been doing a grand business this winter, thanks mostly to the early snow.

Towns around Greater Boston have been running day and night, amply repaying promoters. Snow trains have carried large crowds to all Northern ski centers. And the peak of the season has yet to be reached, as the ski business booms!

Snow conditions for the week-end should be good everywhere. Capacity gatherings are expected at all spots, with every white slope and hill blotted by black figures on flying skis.

DOWNHILL DOINGS

Again—the Fair Sex on skis! The best feminine racers in New England will compete tomorrow morning in the 2d annual New Hampshire Women's Slalom Challenge Cup Race on Huckle Hill, Plymouth, N. H. . . . Sensational 16-year-old Marilyn Shaw of Stowe, Vt., has won the first leg on this cup, and she is favored to win again tomorrow, following her recent victory in the Vermont Women's Slalom at Pico Peak. Stevia Korzun will also be on hand to attempt an upset, as will many other daring gals.

The first prize will be a beautiful Swiss stop watch of the type Marilyn won last year. Second and third places will be rewarded with cups, and the next fifteen placing will receive bracelets. The prizes will be presented at a banquet at the "Pemi" Saturday evening.

Offering the entrants a real test of their skill, the course will be one of the most interesting in the East. Wendy Hilly will set the flags, and the course will be somewhat similar to the one he will arrange for the Chilean ski team who will be guests of the Pemigewasset Hotel on Feb. 10 and 11, and who will race against Wendy's coached Plymouth team on the 10th.

Other ski contests scheduled for New Hampshire this week-end include the four-event meet of the Concord Winter Carnival; the N. H. A. B. C. and veterans' jumping and cross-country championships of the Lebanon Outing Club; and another open giant slalom run by the Eastern Slope Ski Club at North Conway.

In Massachusetts, the State Downhill Championship, postponed from last week, will be decided on the dangerous Thunderbolt Trail on Mt. Greylock in the Berkshires. . . . A large field of Class A, B, and C racers will battle for the coveted trophy.

SKI SCRIBBLINGS

Asa Osborn, who operates his well-known ski store at 8 High st., Boston, is vacationing this week at St. Sauveur in Canada. A little bad luck overtook Asa on his ski-jaut, however, for a brand new pair of skis were stolen from him early in the week. Fortunately, he had another pair of hickorys with him. Asa now hopes the thief won't come down to his shop and say the skis weren't satisfactory.

The Annual Boston Ski Party and dance of the Cabot Ski Club has been set for the evening of March 7, announces Pres. Ray Howell. . . . Ray will lead a racing team to the Ossipee Carnival meet on Sunday, with all eyes on these big cups being awarded as prizes.

Roger Corey of the Wildcat Ski Club will head a gallant group of schussers who will essay the Mass. championship on the Thunderbolt Sunday. . . . Good luck!

Congratulations to Marion McCoomb of the Franconia Ski School who passed her instructor's certification tests last Monday. Miss McCoomb is now the fourth girl ski teacher ever to be certified.

Chatting with several skiers from New York recently who were visiting Cannon Mountain for the first time, we were interested to get their reactions from their initial trips on the aerial tram. . . . All were greatly thrilled and impressed by this development, and found the trails to be among the best they had ever run. And they're coming back for more!

Cannon for kanonen! Time trials are now held on the Cannon Mountain Trail every Wednesday. . . . Within a minute of your specified time wins a bronze cannon. . . . Three minutes and 30 seconds or under gets the silver cannon. . . . And two minutes and 50 seconds or under is the time required for a gold cannon. . . . So it's easy! Try it; the cannons are nice pins!

The visiting Chilean Ski Team are worried about our trails being narrow ribbons slashed through the trees. But New England skiers have the trees worried about them! Captain Charlie McLane of Dartmouth will head a six-man team at the Williams Carnival meet today and Saturday. Other Indian skiers will be Spiff Little, Alex Salm, Jack Tobin, Bob Meserve, and Jack Page. Another six-man Dartmouth team will compete at the Colgate meet on the same two days in Hamilton, N. Y.

CARNIVAL CHATTER
Starting today, the Bridgton, Me. Winter Carnival is off in a swirl of snow! A full and diversified program assures the complete success of this big event. Among the many features listed are: An intercollegiate ski meet Saturday.

B. & A. Runs Train To Berkshires
The Boston & Albany Railroad is scheduling a snow train Sunday to Farnams in the Berkshires, a new old playground for western Massachusetts. There are slopes for beginners, novices, intermediates and experts with three complete ski tows. Winter sport equipment may be rented or purchased aboard the train. The ski area is only five miles from Pittsfield and is creating a lot of interest with ski enthusiasts.

5th Derby For Labels Of Meriden

The Labels of Meriden, Ct., are coming back for their fifth Boston American-Record Silver Skates Derby, a trio of talented skaters both speed and trick.

Little Leo, Jr., will be recalled as the tiny tot whose barrel jumping has been a delight to Derby galleries for years. And Sister Doris, aged 17, and Daddy Leo, Sr., will keep them company.

Junior is 10 years old now. But he was only six when he made his first appearance in the Garden. That was the time he slipped and fell just after the start of the boys' midget championship and in his disappointment the tears streamed down his childish face while mother and father spectators suffered with him.

ENTRIES CLOSE NEXT FRIDAY

Leo, Jr., will once again display his jumping prowess with new embellishments. He has worked hard on a special routine for this occasion.

Once again the Silver Skates Derby editor brings attention to the fact that entries will close on Friday, Feb. 6, just one week from today.

Every year there are hundreds of New England skaters who wait for the last minute to enter. Often they daily until after the official closing date.

Now, the Derby editor doesn't want to be forced to turn down anybody. In fact, he is anxious for all to be in the party. But he must insist on entries being in on time, and so is giving these repeated warnings.

NO POST ENTRIES

These warnings apply particularly to some of the larger out-of-town clubs, which frequently come in too late. We ask these clubs to please co-operate with us and get their entries in before the zero hour. Once the entries are closed, the heats and starting times and numbers are made up. Then it is an impossibility to make any changes.

Today's mails list the entries of John Cain, 15, East Boston; Alfred O'Connell, 13, East Boston; Joe Palmo, 13, Roxbury; Kathleen Boswar, 11, Somerville; Donald Sullivan, 11, Arlington; William Burke, 11, Newton; Daniel Roche, 12, Roslindale; James King, 11, West Quincy; Lloyd Turner, 27, Middlebury, Vt.; John Christopher, 18, Wintthrop; George Thompson, 17, Worcester; Adrian Roy, 26, Nashua, N. H.; and Stanley Diech, 24, Grove St., Boston.

DON'T FORGET—Entries close one week from today.
